IMPORTANT FROM VIRGINIA.

The Junction Between McClellan and Pope Effected.

Gen. Pope Fallen Back to the Line of the Rappahannock.

The Enemy on the South Bank of the River in Great Force.

Unavailing Attempts to Turn Our Flanks.

HEAVY SKIRMISHING ALONG THE LINE.

Our Arms Successful at All Points.

Capt. Sawyer, of the United States transport [illegible], arrived at this port yesterday, reports that Maj. Gen. McClellan left Fortress Monroe, with a large portion of his army, on the 21st., for Aquia Creek, to [illegible]

FROM GEN. POPE'S ARMY.

[illegible] Aug. 19.

We have highly important news from Gen. Pope's Army of Virginia, but refrain from publishing anything that may be unofficial to the Government. Pope's dispatches received in this city, which have been handed to me with the request that their contents be published for the benefit of the people, are [illegible] of a character to alarm friends, which are relieved by our general information to about extent; but as we [illegible] to publish details in present, we [illegible] It is important to suppress the latest news, in accordance with the wishes of the War Department and Gen. HALLECK, McClellan and Pope, hoping that, in a few days, we may be able to honestly relieve the public mind with both official and unofficial reports of events recently transpiring in Virginia. Gen. Pope has probably fallen back across the Rappahannock River, and makes that stream his line of defence. The enemy is said to be on the south bank of the river in great force and his lines demonstrate strong, but ineffectual attempts to cross, and if pushed with vigor right back, at the same time making a demonstration upon our center. With the intention of breaking through it. Such a disposition of our forces has been made that no fears are entertained that any further retreat will be necessary; on the other hand, we have the announcement, by telegraph, that a large portion of the Army of the Potomac has arrived at Alexandria to reinforce the Army of Virginia. Gen. McClellan has arrived with them, and it is believed has assumed command of the entire Army of the Potomac. Fighting, of a desultory and tedious sort, has been going on for several days past, and the enemy has, no doubt, been repulsed at all points by our Artillery, but not without some loss of artillery men and horses. Among the distinguished dead, we regret to record the name of the gallant Col. Cantine, of the Eleventh Pennsylvania Volunteers, who fell while fighting at the head of his brave and war-worn regiment. All honor to his memory, and to the memory of the heroes that have fallen with him. God grant they may be few. During Thursday last, heavy firing was heard on the extreme left of our line; and this led to the belief that Banks's corps, under command of Maj. Gen. Sigel, Gen. Pope's, Pennsylvania, was giving the enemy a favorable latest demonstration, on a grand, or attempt to turn our left flank, would be hazardous, [illegible] and our private advices above, allude to [illegible] Gen. Pope in product for great [illegible] and activity exhibited by him in Thursday fortnight, [illegible] in all which points, and it is said he has not [illegible] 72 hours. We are most [illegible] of our cause [illegible] of our generals [illegible] and in the very best of spirits, always more in most the why for whenever he may present himself. It is evident that Richmond has been left almost none of troops, and that the whole rebel army has been thrashed against the Army of Virginia; but before many hours we hope to record a brilliant and decisive Union victory in the great battle which is now imminent, and it is thought, will be fought on Sunday next. We find nothing in all this to discourage us in the least. It is but the commencement of the plans of our Commander-in-Chief. The failure of the campaign of the Peninsula rendered it necessary for the Army of Virginia to be organized, and pushed forward toward Richmond, to attract the attention of the rebels, while the Army of the Potomac—a good letter of Harrison's Landing—should be brought away, and put into a position where it could operate against the enemy effectively. In bringing it to Alexandria this end has been attained.

NAMES OF SICK AND WOUNDED.

Under date of Alexandria, Aug. 22, the correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer writes:

The list of sick and wounded, spoken, which I send in this letter, was obtained from the surgeon in charge of the train that arrived here about 4 o'clock this morning. Time was not permitted me to gather more than the names of the New-Jersey and Pennsylvania troops. In fact, owing to some blunder on the part of the surgeon aforesaid, there was no accurate list made out, and that individual very coolly informed me that he had no need his train, nor of anybody, such about whom he knew nothing. To whoever framed the sentimental verses of the poet [illegible] who lay almost piled on top of one another, on the ship [illegible] about them, no fastening than could [illegible] Another train is expected given this evening, with about one thousand more. Most of the wounded were brought from the field after the retreating of the Union forces, last Thursday. The fight on Friday, in the vicinity of Rappahannock and Rapidan Stations. But few Pennsylvania fell on our side. Yesterday a portion of Gen. McDowell's infantry were engaged, but with what effect I could not learn. Sedgwick's division was in the fight, represented to be very [illegible]

About two miles from the city, on the Leesburg turnpike, there is a large convalescent camp, where nearly three thousand soldiers are scattered, their [illegible] Many have already been forwarded to their regiments. In the city, circus building are used for hospital purposes. A few of whom were brigadier Generals commanded. There are a large number of Pennsylvania officers in these hospitals, whose names have been published in the Inquirer. I understand by New-Jersey Water, Chemists of Col. Stewart's regiment, the most valuable information concerning affairs in the city.

GUERRILLAS IN VIRGINIA.

Two Skirmishes Near the Mouth of the Rappahannock—Several Men Wounded and One Killed—Two Rebel Vessels Destroyed.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, Aug. 23.

The gunboat Resolute, Acting Master TOZER, arrived here this morning, bringing the body of Midshipman RYAN, who was killed on the 21st, near the mouth of the Rappahannock. From one of the officers here the following particulars have been obtained:

Recently, Master TOZER, with a boat's crew from the Resolute, proceeded up Sturgeon Creek, about three miles, to cut out two vessels, which he had been informed were up the creek, and reaching the place cut out one of them, and were towing it down, when it ran aground. They set about getting it off, when they were fired into by a gang of guerrillas in ambush on shore. The fire was immediately returned, and was kept up for some time, but finding it impossible to get the sloop off the party returned to the Resolute. The following persons in the boat were wounded: Peter Nelson, in the hand; R. Kane, in the side, thigh and arm; John McDonald, in the left hand and arm, and ——Jackson, a citizen of Virginia, who was acting as pilot, in the forehead.

Thursday last another expedition was formed, and Master JECKIN, of the Reliance, Master TOZER and Master's Mate T. NEWNEN, with boat's crew from the two vessels, went up again and set fire to the schooner, and finding the sloop still aground, they also fired her. As they were pulling away, the guerrillas fired into them from ambush on shore. The men immediately returned the fire with rifles, and working the boat in position, brought a howitzer to bear on the enemy with grape and rifled shot, and, it is probable, with effect, as the firing from the shore soon ceased.

In our boat Midshipman RYAN, of the Resolute, was killed; Tho. NEWNEN, Master's Mate, wounded in the foot; ANDREW STEVENS, of the Reliance, in the thigh; and FRANK MILLER, of the Reliance, in the arm.

The boat then returned, firing into every suspicious locality on the way, in order to guard against surprise, and returned to the ships. As the boat was pulling away from the scene of action, the crews were seen running to the field and along the creek, having with them a number of women and children, using them apparently as screens to prevent our men from firing upon them.

Democratic Meeting in Independence-square, Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Saturday, Aug. 23.

The meeting called by Mr. HIESTAND, Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, in progressing quietly in Independence-square.

About 2,000 persons are present.

Delegations marched from the various wards to the Square with torches.

Hon. WM. WARD made a speech, in which he claimed that the Democratic party was the only war party in the country, and without its aid there could be no hope of bringing the war to a close. Democrats were ready to aid the Administration to restore the Constitution as it was.

Mr. HIESTAND also made a speech, and introduced a series of resolutions, declaring a war of subjugation to be a war of disunion; and that the Abolitionists are endeavoring, by insidious and treacherous means, to destroy the Constitution, and thereby the Union, by overthrowing in detail the fundamental provisions of the Constitution, without which no free Government can exist.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

The New-York and Brooklyn Tax Appointments.

Satisfactory Condition of our Foreign Relations.

The Supply of Springfield Muskets Run Out.

How the President Came to Write a Letter to Horace Greeley.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, Aug. 23.

THE NEW-YORK TAX-APPOINTMENTS.

Since the list of Tax-appointments for New-York and Brooklyn was sent in to the President, it is understood that the name of Col. WEED, of the old Brooklyn Fourteenth Regiment, has also been sent in as Collector for the Second District. One or two other changes are talked of, as perhaps likely to be made by the President. There is a pressure to have GARRETT substituted for MANN in the Fourth District, but the change is not thought probable. The Collector recommended for the Third District is HENRY C. KEENAN, not "BROWN," as it is printed this morning.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER TO HORACE GREELEY.

SATISFACTORY CONDITION OF OUR FOREIGN RELATIONS.

It is authoritatively stated that our foreign relations never have presented so gratifying an appearance before, since the rebellion broke out, as they do now. All fears of intervention are utterly dissipated for the present. Whatever may be the real intentions of the Emperor, France will have too much to do with CAMBAIRE and Italy, and with attaching up the Mexican expedition, to have any time for troubling us; and while France holds off, we are safe from difficulty with England. It is denied that any such cordial understanding as has been represented does exist between England and France relating to our affairs. It is further stated that the news that six hundred thousand more men are coming forward to answer to the President's call is producing a most happy effect, its obvious lesson—viz., that we are a good neighbor to let alone—is being well learnt in all influential circles.

NO MORE SPRINGFIELD MUSKETS.

The supply of Springfield muskets is to-day completely exhausted. Troops will now be armed with the Belgian rifles till the cargoes of captured arms, referred to last night, are available.

THE REBEL ARMIES.

This evening's Star gives the following statements of the number with which the rebels have been operating on the Peninsula and around Richmond:

"From the South we have the following data to ascertain the strength of the Confederate forces from the date of the Continental battle, June 1, 1862, to the present time:

"Our informant states that Gen. JOHNSTON left Manassas with forty thousand effective men. Gen. MAGRUDER held Yorktown with seven thousand five hundred effective men when the Union army landed. The Confederates, acting under the advice of Gen. LEE, left Yorktown with sixty-seven thousand men. On June 1, eighty-five thousand rations were issued to the Confederate army before Richmond. Detailed reports by regiments, brigades and battalions, of all but seventeen Carolina, showed that six thousand three hundred and fifty-seven soldiers were placed hors de combat in the battle of Seven Pines. On June 21, one hundred and twenty-eight thousand rations were issued to the rebel army before Richmond. By July 20 thirty thousand new troops had reached Richmond from the South, most of whom were new levies, and not regarded as thoroughly safe. On the 13th of August there were six regiments of infantry at Savannah, and a force of thirty-four thousand near Charleston.

"Several days ago the President read to a friend a rough draft of what appears this morning as a letter to HORACE GREELEY. He said that he had thought of putting some such statement of his position on the Slavery question before the public in some manner, and asked the opinion of his friend as to the propriety of such a course, and the best way of accomplishing it. The appearance of GREELEY's letter gave him the opportunity he had been looking for, and it was embraced as giving occasion for such a statement as he had before desired to make. Those who insist on precedent, and Presidential dignity, are horrified at this novel idea of Mr. LINCOLN's, but there is usual unanimous admiration of the skill and force with which he has defined his policy. The National Intelligencer accompanies the President's letter with an editorial, suggesting that GREELEY will be very much astonished at getting a response to his communication, and reading him a little lesson in etiquette, as follows:

"We hope that when Mr. GREELEY has duly pondered the pithy sentences of the President's letter, he will be able to rejoin, if he proposes to continue the correspondence, in a spirit which shall be slightly less arrogant, dictatorial and acrimonious. Twenty millions of his countrymen have a right to claim this at his hands, in deference to the high office whose incumbent he ventures to arraign before the bar of public opinion in their name."

A GAZARD.

The story which found currency in one of our disloyal papers, that a railroad train was attacked by rebel guerrillas yesterday evening, is wholly untrue.

PATMASTER FOLSOM.

It is a misapprehension to suppose that Maj. FOLSOM was arrested because of any suspicion that he was a defaulter. He was only arrested because he deposited Government specie for a bank for safe keeping instead of in the Treasury. No Paymaster stands higher for integrity in the Pay Department than Maj. FOLSOM.

SHOULDER AND THE TAX LAW.

The Treasury Department construes the word "Peddler," as used in the Excise law, to be a person who goes a-hawking by traveling from place to place and selling goods and wares, or who whose occupation it is to sell goods while traveling from place to place. A farmer who sells his own products by traveling from house to house is not a "peddler" in the sense of the law.

A REBEL PAROLED.

Capt. GARNEY, of the rebel army, brother of Dr. GARNEY, formerly of this city, who was a prisoner in the Old Capitol Prison, has been released upon his parole. He says that he will never take the oath of allegiance. He was paroled on account of ill health.

REBEL PRISONERS.

Ten rebel prisoners were brought in this morning and sent to the Old Capitol. Among them is Capt. ELLIS, of the Fifth Virginia Cavalry.

STATE PRISONERS FROM ILLINOIS.

Marshal D. L. PHILLIPS, of Illinois, arrived here to-day, having in charge twelve State prisoners from that State, who were taken before the Provost-Marshal and sent to the Old Capitol.

A LETTER FROM PRESIDENT LINCOLN.

Reply to Horace Greeley.

Slavery and the Union—The Restoration of the Union the Paramount Object.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, Aug. 22, 1862.

Hon. Horace Greeley:

DEAR SIR: I have just read yours of the 19th, addressed to myself through the New-York Tribune. If there be in it any misstatements of fact which I may know to be such, I do not now and have occasion to deny them. If there be in it any inferences which I may believe to be falsely drawn, I do not now and have cause to quarrel with them. If there be any purpose in it at variance with my official duty, I have it in forbearance to assail a friend, whose heart I have always reputed to be right.

As to the policy I "seem to be pursuing," as you say, I have not spoken to have any one to guess. I would save the Union. I would save it the shortest way under the Constitution. The sooner the national authority can be restored, the nearer the Union will be—"the Union as it was." If there be those who would not save the Union unless they could at the same time destroy Slavery, I do not agree with them. My paramount object in this struggle is to save the Union, and is not either to save or destroy Slavery. If I could save the Union without freeing any slave, I would do it, and if I could save it by freeing all the slaves, I would do it, and if I could save it by freeing some and leaving others alone, I would also do that. What I do about Slavery and the colored race, I do because I believe it helps to save this Union, and what I forbear, I forbear because I do not believe it would help to save the Union. I shall do less whenever I shall believe what I am doing hurts the cause, and I shall do more whenever I shall believe doing more will help the cause. I shall try to correct errors when shown to be errors, and I shall adopt new views as fast as they shall appear to be true views. I have here stated my purpose according to my view of official duty, and I intend no modification of my oft-expressed personal wish that all men, everywhere, could be free. Yours,

A. LINCOLN.

FROM FORTRESS MONROE.

Particulars of the Rebel Demonstration Against our Pickets, near Suffolk, on Friday—Rumors of Another Attack Last Evening—Perilous Condition of Suffolk—Death of Col. G. H. Halleday.

From Our Own Correspondent.

OFF FORT, Wednesday, Aug. 20, 1862.

The rebel demonstration upon Suffolk, which I mentioned in my letter of the 16th, has proved to be more than an idle report, as I have mentioned, [illegible] proof from one who actually took part in [illegible] the attack.

It appears that on Friday last, at 7 o'clock P. M., 400 rebel cavalry came in sight of our pickets, 25 of them actually coming inside of our outside post. As soon as the news reached our camp, 250 of the Eleventh Pennsylvania Cavalry, under Major WESTBROOK, (First Lieut. J. D. MAHER commanding the advance guard,) went in pursuit. After going six miles, they found a place where the rebels had dismounted, and known as the Widow BALLARD's. The enemy had come in on the Petersburg Road, crossed over to the South Quay, and went toward the Black Water. Our cavalry pursued them as far as Carrsville, about seven miles distant, and got there at 9 o'clock P. M. While at Carrsville they heard drums beating very distinctly, and were informed by the people of the neighborhood that two regiments of infantry and a portion of a battery of artillery had crossed the Black Water. The parties engaged in this expedition were Company A, Capt. SPENCER, Company E, Lieut. BAILEY, Company G, Lieut. WILLIAMS, Company B, Capt. BEIT, Company L, on picket. Fourteen of these were in camp, and although on the sick list, turned out, and were in the advance guard with Lieut. MAHER.

I had scarcely penned the above when a friend, just in from Norfolk, assured me that there was a very current rumor there of our pickets being attacked again near Suffolk, yesterday, the 20th, by 500 rebel cavalry. Again I ask, are the disloyal citizens of Suffolk disarmed? One house has been searched and found to contain arms; are we sure that every other house is not in the same predicament? and shall we wait until the inhabitants are joining the enemy and shooting down our soldiers from every window and balcony, before we make the search?

Many in New-York and elsewhere will be grieved to hear of the death of the gallant Lieut.-Col. G. H. HALLEDAY, of the Ninety-ninth New-York. He died of typhoid fever, at Norfolk, on the 18th inst., and his remains were interred with military honors yesterday, in the United States Cemetery, near the Marine Hospital, and attended by a vast concourse of people. Col. HALLEDAY was beloved by every one who knew him, in or out of the army,—and his death has thrown a gloom over the whole place.

I send you particulars of our army movements hereabouts, but in a private dispatch. Some of these movements you will find of the utmost consequence.

NEMO.

IMPORTANT FROM KENTUCKY.

Defeat of the National Forces Under Gen. E. A. Johnson.

Three Hundred of our Men Captured.

GEN. JOHNSON A PRISONER.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Saturday, Aug. 23.

Major-Gens. BUELL and WRIGHT, and Brig.-Gens. JACKSON, MORGAN and CRITTENDEN, arrived in this city this morning.

Gen. E. W. JOHNSON, of Kentucky, with 800 Federal soldiers, comprising a part of the Second Michigan Regiment, WITBECK's Pennsylvania Regiment, and the Kentucky Cavalry, under Col. HAYNIE, attacked 1,200 guerrillas, under MORGAN, near Gallatin, and were defeated, with a loss of 300 prisoners, including Gen. JOHNSON. The remainder of the Federal forces escaped and went to Nashville.

Col. McCOOK was not in the fight.

There has been no telegraphic communication south of Russellville, Ky., since 5 o'clock on Thursday afternoon.

BOWLING GREEN, Friday, Aug. 22.

Capt. GOODWIN'S Company, of the Fifty-fourth Indiana Regiment, were attacked at Red River yesterday afternoon, by 300 guerrillas, under WORTHAM, and three pieces of artillery. After an obstinate resistance, in which GOODWIN's men killed twenty to thirty rebels, GOODWIN surrendered. Our loss was seven wounded.

WORTHAM paroled our men.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Friday, Aug. 22.

Gen. WRIGHT's Staff has arrived here, and the General himself is expected to-night.

Gen. BOYLE has issued orders that no person shall leave the city without a pass from the Provost Marshal. He saw the necessity from the rapid movements of the rebel forces, now estimated at 20,000, having in rear of our lines, and endeavoring to cut off our communication with the North. Gen. BOYLE has taken possession of all the steamers in port, for the same purpose.

Gen. NELSON was at Bowling Green at 11 o'clock tonight, and was to leave immediately for Louisville.

NEWS FROM MEMPHIS.

Movements of the Rebels in Arkansas—Probable Movements in Tennessee, &c.

MEMPHIS, Wednesday, Aug. 20.

Thirteen hundred guerrillas, opposite Helena, have burned one thousand bales of Cotton, and committed other depredations within the last few days.

It is reported that Gen. HINDMAN's rebel army is moving west from Little Rock. The people along the road are going with the army, taking their negroes and other movable property with them.

While Gen. HOVEY's Division was returning to Helena from Clarendon, four of his men were killed, and several wounded by guerrillas. A large amount of property was captured by them.

A refugee from the South furnishes the following intelligence regarding Southern military movements:

"Gen. BRAGG is at Chattanooga.

The next move seems as if it would be on Nashville.

The reports of a portion of BRAGG's forces being at Grand Junction are unfounded. He is in Friday, there were none there except scouting parties, who would come in daily, and take what they wanted, and then leave.

Grand Junction seems to be regarded by them as doubtful ground—hence they make arrangements to stay there at short a time as possible."

MEMPHIS, Saturday, Aug. 23.

Part of the gunboat fleet made a reconnoissance below Napoleon, Arkansas, and found all quiet, and returned.

The Grenada Appeal continues to assert that a general movement of the rebel armies west is to take place immediately, and that Tennessee and Kentucky are soon to be in possession of the Confederates.

On the 20th inst., 2,000 guerrillas passed through Raleigh, Tennessee, in the direction of Memphis, and returned their steps the same afternoon, burning at the bridges on the Wolfe and Hatchie Rivers, and all the cotton they could find. The country northward of Memphis, outside the Federal lines, is represented to be considerably excited, in consequence of depredations committed by men claiming to be Federal soldiers, but are probably rebels in disguise.

MEMPHIS, Monday, Aug. 18.

The ferry-boat plying between Memphis and Mound City, Ark., was burned by guerrillas on Saturday.

The stores in this vicinity have been robbed, and many Secesh stolen.

Gen. SULLIVAN has been assigned by SHERMAN to command the district between Memphis and Gen. HOVEY's Division of Cavalry arrived at Helena on the 8th, by Clarendon, on White River, where a large body of rebels are encamped. The rebels were warned of his approach, and in the direction of Little Rock. A cavalry force was sent in pursuit.

CAIRO, Friday, Aug. 22.

The steamer Champion, on her last passage to Memphis, was attacked by guerrillas at Island Bayou, just below Hickman. She was struck by over seventy shots, but no one was injured.

The steamer Sentinel, in the Government service, was burned by the rebels twenty miles below Memphis a few days since.

There is unusual activity here in completing repairs on boats. A large number of extra hands are employed.

Memphis papers of the 19th, say that BRAGG undoubtedly is at Chattanooga.

At the last accounts a portion of the cavalry in Holly Springs were committing depredations on Union men.

THE INDIAN MASSACRES.

Terrible Scenes of Death and Misery in Minnesota.

Five Hundred Whites Supposed to be Murdered.

The Sioux Bands United Against the Whites.

FORT RIDGELEY IN DANGER.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Saturday, Aug. 23.

Parties from the Minnesota River reached here last night. They bring the news confirming the number of whites already killed by the Sioux, at 500.

This opinion is based on the account of bodies discovered along the road and in a state of blood. It is believed that all the settlements have been laid waste.

The Cleveland Leader remarks that things look very bad for civilization.

Mr. Tyrrell, an Irishman who has lived most of his life among the Indians, volunteered to go among young Red, trusting to his knowledge of them and his character, to escape detection. He reached home in Indian costume and started on his journey. He returned at the Upper Agency at night.

This place was literally the habitation of death. He visited all the houses, and found they contained no living creatures, but many on the floor and scattered about their habitations. Others were found in the yards and in the woods.

He went to the house of Hon. J. R. Brown, and recognized twenty members of the family. They had received eighteen in all, and every one of them had been brutally murdered.

At Beaver Creek he found that fifty families had been killed outright. At every house he visited he recognized the dead bodies of nearly all the former inhabitants of the place.

Among the dead bodies he recognized at the Agency were the following:

H. GOVERN and family.
Dr. WAKEMAN and family.
JOHN TENNANT and family.
JOHN MOTSON.
EDWARD MOTSON.
Rev. Dr. WILLSON.
Rev. Mr. RIGGS, and two missionaries.

Ex-Gov. RAMSEY is now assisting in the relief of Fort Ridgley.

He reports that the Sioux bands are united together to carry out a concerted and desperate scheme, and says that he will be only too happy to find that the powerful upper bands of Yankton and other tribes have not united with them.

Mr. Paxson writes to Gov. RAMSEY, on the 22d inst., saying that he left Fort Ridgley at 3 o'clock on that morning. There were then over two thousand Indians at the fort, and all the women and children had been sent on ahead, and were [illegible]

The St. Paul (Minn.) Pioneer, of the 20th, says: It is thought that the Indians have been industrious to commit quite enough by Indians from different and opposite tribes. If the state [illegible] Maj. GALBRAITH left the agency on Friday, all was quiet. The Indians had [illegible] and had all disappeared apparently satisfied with our Major's promise to meet his chiefs on [illegible] money arrived to pay them their annuities.

The first intelligence of the Indians was made in the house of Mr. BAKER, on Sunday last, near the town of Acton, and 30 miles from Forest City, in which 7 white men and one woman were killed.

On Monday morning an attack was made at Redwood, and at the time the messenger left there, a number of persons had been killed.

After the messenger had crossed the river, he saw the Indians bring into Redwood stores and other buildings. He estimated the number of Indians engaged in this fiendish work at 150. He also stated that messengers had arrived at Fort Ridgley with money to pay off the Indians the same day.

The St. Paul Press of the 21st instant, says that several bands of panic-stricken people from Gaston and Sibley Counties, arrived in town last night, principally women and children. They were greatly excited, and give exaggerated accounts of the Indians, who were marching on Blue Earth County. They also say that the towns of St. Peter, Henderson and Glencoe have been burned.

A private letter received in this city, today, from St. Paul, dated 20th instant, says, that it seems to be the general opinion among

Maxwell and Baker, of Florida; Mr. Hill, of Georgia; Mr. Barnwell, of Kentucky; Mr. Sompayrac, of Louisiana; Messrs. Brown and Chalmers, of Mississippi; Mr. Clark, of Missouri; Messrs. Mr. CLAY, of Alabama, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate communicate to the House of Representatives that the Senate is now prepared to adjourn, and is ready to proceed to business.

After a brief interruption, the Clerk of the House returned with the message of that body to proceed with the business of the session, and announced that the President of the Senate had duly assembled, and was prepared to receive any communication from the House.

On motion, the Senate commenced the joint session, and the President appointed on the Joint Committee Messrs. Clay and Lewis.

Mr. YANCEY moved that, in order to save time, we should adopt the following resolution:

Resolved, That the forty-third rule of the Rules of the Senate be stricken out, and that the forty-sixth rule be stricken out, and the following words substituted: "Executive business shall be transacted in open doors, except otherwise ordered by a vote of two-thirds of the members, the ayes and noes to be taken by yeas and nays."

(The forty-third and forty-sixth rules relate especially to the matter of secret sessions.)

The Joint Committee on the part of the Senate, to wait on the President, returning, the Chairman, Mr. CLAY, reported the following:

JEFF. DAVIS' MESSAGE.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Confederate States:

It is again our fortune to meet for devising measures necessary to the public welfare, while a country is involved in a desolating war. The sufferings endured by some portions of the people excite the deepest solicitude of the Government, and the sympathy thus evoked has been heightened by the patriotic fortitude with which these sufferings have been borne. The gallantry and good conduct of our troops, always claiming the gratitude of the country, have been further illustrated on hard-fought fields, marked by exhibitions of individual prowess which can find narrow parallels in the pages of modern history. Gratifying has not failed, in any of the various trials to which it has been subjected, and the great body of the people continue, as we trust they will ever, united, and, with rare exceptions, true to the cause. Not to the battle-stained soldier, but to the patriotic citizens of constitutional liberty, is our final triumph in the pending struggle against despotic usurpation.

The vast army which threatened the capital of the Confederacy has been retarded and driven from the direct investment, and the enemy, repeatedly foiled in his efforts by its capture, is now seeking to rally his broken forces, on a line which, if successfully held, will, in fact, effect that subjugation of the South so often proclaimed as the event of a speedy conquest.

The perfidy which disregarded rights secured by compact, the madness which trampled on obligations held sacred by every consideration of honor, have culminated in the most savage enactment ever disgraced the annals of civilized warfare. These positions have changed the character of the hostilities waged by our enemies, who are becoming daily less regardful of the usages of civilized war, and more reckless of the lives of their fellow-creatures. Regardless of the sacred character of private property, our unprotected cities are subjected to the horrors of bombardment, our women to the insults of a brutal soldiery, and our citizens, in some instances, to the ignominy of a felon's dungeon. The outrage upon the citizens of New-Orleans, in violation of the express terms of the capitulation, has been followed by the adoption, by the President of the United States, of the declaration that, if they shall be found in arms, they will be treated as traitors and felons. The order for the execution of the leading citizen of Fredericksburg, for the crime of refusing to take the oath of allegiance to a government not his own, has been followed by the announcement that, if the sentence be not promptly executed, the victim is to be put to death by the hand of the public executioner. Our citizens, taken in the exercise of the rights of war, are not treated as prisoners of war, but are subjected to the indignity of being tried as felons. The slaves, who, in the early part of the war, were employed by their masters on the public works, are now claimed as the property of the enemy, who, in violation of his own proclamation, and have also punished innocent private citizens for their acts. It is evident that an order has been issued by the enemy that our officers, if captured, are to be put to death, or treated with indignities, if they shall be found in the same military command with negroes who have been slaves. Our citizens, taken on the high seas, are threatened with the same treatment, if they shall be found in the same prison with negroes who have been slaves. Our citizens, taken in the interior of our country, are transported to the Northern States, there to be imprisoned in the same dungeons with negroes who have been slaves. Our citizens, residing in the Northern States, are imprisoned in the same dungeons with negroes who have been slaves, if they have ventured to express their sympathies for their kindred in the South. The President of the United States has announced his purpose to place the officers of our army in the category of felons, and to treat them as such, if they shall be found in the same military command with negroes who have been slaves. The President of the United States has announced his purpose to place our citizens, captured on the high seas, in the category of felons, and to treat them as such, if they shall be found in the same prison with negroes who have been slaves. The President of the United States has announced his purpose to place our citizens, captured in the interior of our country, in the category of felons, and to treat them as such, if they shall be found in the same dungeons with negroes who have been slaves. NATIONAL GERMAN SCHUTZENFEST.

Grand National Reunion at Frankfort-on-the-Main—Strong Sympathy with the American Union—The Flag Enthusiastically Saluted—Speeches, &c., &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

FRANKFORT-ON-THE-MAIN, July 26, 1862.

I send you a short account of the great National Schützenfest held here for the past two weeks. It commenced on Sunday, the 13th, and ended on Monday last. It was an immense affair, and a perfect success, and riflemen were here from nearly every country in Europe, and a few Americans were engaged in the strife for the prizes, and took some. The distance for shooting was generally 1,000 feet, and our Swiss Republicans made generally the best shots. The best prize was one of 1,000 thalers, and was won by a man from Mayence. The beautiful present sent from Philadelphia, of a specimen of each of the gold coins of the United States, was won by a Nuremburger. A beautiful large silk flag was sent from Philadelphia also, as a present to the National Rifle Association. Presents were promised and expected from New-York, Baltimore, St. Louis, &c., but they were not received in time, and have not yet come to hand. Sunday, the first day of the exhibition, was a great day. The great procession took hours to pass through the streets, and it embraced all the shooters—German Turners and bannere from nearly all the countries in Europe. Even the old ancestors were taken off and represented in this train—(the old Dutch and Teutonic covered with the skins of beasts of the forest, &c., &c.) The procession must have included in it not less than 10,000, and was for hours passing the streets. On arriving opposite the English hotel, the Duke of Saxe-Gotha came out, in rifleman's dress and made a very good speech, and then marched on foot at the head of the procession to the shooting-grounds. No less, perhaps, than two hundred flags—some of them superbly elegant—were to be seen in the procession, all representing the different nations of Germany. On the second day, by invitation, Mr. W. W. MURRAY, the General-General of the United States, and all the Americans, were invited to make a presentation of the United States flag next to the Society by the Philadelphia German Rifle Club, and were invited to take dinner at the Feast Hall of the exhibition. The Americans met and marched in procession two by two—(representing the thirty-four States of the Union.) The little company was preceded by a band of music, and as the procession passed through the streets, the Star-Spangled Banner was cheered from the streets and windows for the whole distance, from its starting point to the shooting-ground. The cheering from the house-tops and windows—the waving of handkerchiefs by the ladies, and the cheering of the flag of liberty, was almost universal from the thousands in the streets and buildings near which the procession passed. The air rang with loud huzzas during the marching of the little American band. On arriving at the shooting-grounds, the procession marched in the gate up to the Gabon Pempel—("Gift Temple")—a pretty little temple filled with all the beautiful presents for the shooters, and which were estimated in value at about 200,000 florins or guilders.

On arriving at the Temple, the Consul-General made a short speech, which was taken down in shorthand, and was as follows, as reported in the German papers:

"GENTLEMEN OF THE NATIONAL RIFLE ASSOCIATION: It affords me great pleasure to be here to-day, more particularly to be honored to present to the National Rifle Association this beautiful banner—the emblem of American Liberty—the gift of their brother Germans of the Philadelphia Rifle Club. It is the flag of a great Republic representing the thirty-four States of the Union—"a Union one and indivisible." A civil war now is raging in our beloved country. It is a second war for constitutional liberty. In 1776 we waged a great war for human rights; and now we are again compelled to engage in a sanguinary and expensive struggle for the same great object in the organization of our Republic we were cursed with a great evil—the institution of Slavery, which existed in several of the States of our Union. The war was commenced by the people of the South for the extension and perpetuation of that evil. The Northern army of the Union are fighting for the Union, the Constitution and freedom. The South for disunion, Slavery and despotism. A hundred thousand of your fellow-German citizens, are marching under the leadership of a Sigel, a Schurz, a Salomon, a Asmussen, and other distinguished German officers, and are carrying the glorious Star-spangled Banner to victory. They ask for your prayers and sympathies in this great struggle. Shall they have them? I know you will respond yes. It is a common saying in America, when we speak of the infusion, or a great immigration of a foreign people in our country, in great numbers, to say "the Dutch have taken Holland." Well, there are parts of America where the Germans have taken Germany, (they being so numerous.) Many of the populous cities and towns in America have more Germans than Americans, and in many others, like Milwaukee, Chicago and St. Louis, they constitute a great share of the population. They make good citizens, always ready to maintain the laws and usages of their adopted country. In the State of Pennsylvania, so great is the influence of the Germans for the language of their fatherland, that they prohibit, it is said, the teaching of the English language in their common schools.

I have been informed that other German-American rifle clubs have sent presents and deputations, and had it not been for our civil war they would have sent them from all the principal cities. The organization of the Schützenfest is said to be in some way connected with a political movement, having for its object the extension of liberal laws and sentiments. I hope it will meet with success. America hopes to see a free and united Germany.

In conclusion, I must mention the enlightened and liberal Duke of Saxe Gotha and the Grand Duke of Baden, who have contributed so much in aid of this Association. Throughout America they are venerated for their liberal views, and in the Prince, the cottage, and the schools are their names everywhere mentioned in honorable terms. May their days be long and useful, and it is to be hoped that all the Princes of Germany may follow their example. Future generations will lisp their names with reverence and erect monuments to their memory in the affection of their hearts."

After these remarks, Mr. AUG. GLAESNER, Secretary of the U. S. Consulate-General, addressed the Germans in their own language, assembled in thousands in front of the "Gabel Tempel," (gift temple,) where the flag was waving. The flag was then delivered, amid the most enthusiastic cheers of the crowd, by the Consul-General to the Duke Ernest of Saxe Coburg, as President of the German National Riflemen's Association.

At the dinner, which many of the Americans attended, were several interesting speeches. I give you the speech of Dr. THOMA, a Professor in the University of Heidelberg, and one of the most highly-educated men in Germany. His speech called down the cheers and shouts of more than four thousand people who sat down to dinner in the feast hall, a building which would accommodate six thousand at dinner at one time.

Dr. THOMA said, that upon the call of the Association of Sharpshooters, they have congregated here from all parts of Germany and neighboring countries, especially Switzerland, to have one grand shooting festival. We mean to be of one mind, and therefore must get acquainted with each other. This is the place where we exchange opinions, compare our hopes and fears, to be enabled to solve the great questions of the times. Friends, we all strive for law and liberty; like us and with us, there strive on the other shore but blood-relations. They strive for the same liberty and independence of the United States of America. "These blood-relations," is my text. As the heart forces the blood through all parts of the body into the utmost extremities, thus the blood of a Nation flows through every member, wherever they may be, whatever obstructions may be placed be-

THE INVASION OF KENTUCKY.

Official Dispatches from Gen. Boyle and Gen. Morgan.

From the Indianapolis Journal, of Monday.

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 18.

The intelligence received is unfavorable to-day. The rebels, I believe, are advancing, and I fear will out off Gen. Morgan's train and gain his rear. Lieut-Col. HOBBLAND, of Col. CLIFT's Seventh Tennessee Regiment, telegraphs from Barbourville that the enemy, twenty-five hundred strong, are in the vicinity of Clift's Regiment, in Scott County, Tennessee. A dispatch from my spy at Somerset says that two hundred rebel cavalry at Monticello, near Mill Spring, are supposed to be an advanced guard of the enemy.

J. T. BOYLE, Brig.-Gen. Comdg.

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 16, 1862.

The rebels have entered the State at several points. Somerset is captured and in their possession. They are moving on Glasgow and threaten Bowling Green. Order the troops from Evansville here, and send all you can. The men will receive the bounty afterward. Any delay will be disastrous.

J. T. BOYLE, Brigadier-General Commanding.

CUMBERLAND GAP, Saturday, Aug. 16.

If you have not already done so, please send all troops ready for the field to Kentucky. The intelligence given me by my scouts [illegible] Smith, at the head of at least five brigades of infantry, four batteries at least of artillery, and a corresponding force of cavalry, is within two miles of Big Creek Gap. Another force of equal size is in front. The plan is to cut my line of supplies, compel a precipitate evacuation of the Gap, and then invade Kentucky in force. Not a moment is to be lost.

GEO. W. MORGAN.

LOUISVILLE, Saturday, Aug. 16.

Another dispatch from Gen. MORGAN says:

KIRBY SMITH is marching upon Barbourville in his rear, with five brigades of infantry and a proportion of cavalry and artillery. Gen. MORGAN has retired part of his forces to Barbourville, to hold the place and ask for reinforcements.

Col. BRUCE telegraphs me that MORGAN is still in the vicinity of Cumberland, and had driven off the Kirby's working on the tunnel, and broken the sand-cams. Foster and BURNSIDE are expected to join him.

J. T. BOYLE, Brigadier-General Commanding.

A brother of Col. CORCORAN, living in Buffalo, disappeared from home a few days since, and for a short time his wife could get no information concerning him. Finally, she found that he had enlisted, but in what regiment she has not yet ascertained.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

There is no doubt this week that the fate of the two great armies under Gen. McCLELLAN and Gen. POPE has been fully settled, and the rebels are thus foiled in their intention to crush the latter, with every prospect, moreover, that Pope's army, it is now well understood, has fallen back from the Rapidan, and established the Potomac between itself and Richmond. This movement was effected with perfect success, although it is believed that the rebels were pressing closely in the rear. They are now in force, there on the south bank of the Rappahannock, and from all we can learn, have made several attempts to cross, and have gone out eight and ten miles to find fords, but have in every case been repulsed. How that can be so, rather leaves room for doubt, but many reports to a great number to the effect every day—perhaps to-day. The Washington news of Thursday says: "Skirmishing has continued here going on for the last two days, there is different points between Sharpsburg, considerable portions of the two great independent armies, between here and Richmond. Firing is here and there, nearly all section, though a number on both sides have been killed and wounded. Up to the latest advices, (just as we go to press,) all was well within the Union lines."

The National Intelligencer states that the total number of reinforcements arrived in Washington since the 15th instant, to 5 o'clock on Friday evening, including recruits for old regiments, was 10,000.

"It is rumored that when our forces in Virginia are fully concentrated, Gen. HALLECK will take the field in person as Commander-in-Chief.

The President has written a letter to Horace GREELEY, in response to the one written by the latter and published recently in the TRIBUNE. He announces that his paramount object is the restoration of the Union, and not the safety or destruction of Slavery. If he can save the Union without freeing the slaves, he will do it; if he can do it by freeing some and leaving others alone, he will do it.

A panic prevails in Buffalo that a rebel fleet is dispatched for Europe—as has a passenger in fact, that Mr. R. TANEY—his recently passed through that City into Canada, on his way to Europe.

We have advices from New-Orleans to the 13th inst., by the arrival at this port of the steamer Mississippi. The health of the city continued remarkably good. It is believed that Butler's attack upon Baton Rouge will soon be made by the rebels. Their army was said to be stationed some ten miles from that place, awaiting reinforcements, and intended to attack upon their arrival. Our outer pickets had been called in, and all non-combatants had been ordered to leave, as it was the intention to shell the city. Gen. BRAGG has issued two proclamations—one confiscating the property of the traitor Slaves, and the other compelling the citizens within his jurisdiction to deliver to safety all private arms in their possession.

A letter from Capt. J. E. Brown, of the war Arkansas, to Gen. BRAGG, published in the Memphis Appeal of the 15th, says that she was not aground when blown up, as was reported, but was destroyed because her engines would not work. Her crew, which escaped to the west shore, were, with the exception of the chief pilot and three Lieutenants, all captured by our cavalry, opposite Fort Hudson. Before they were captured, the Arkansas' crew came in sight of a band of guerrillas, who ran away without waiting to be hailed.

A letter to the New-Haven Palladium, from on board the gunboat Fort Royal, dated off Harrison's Landing, Aug. 12, says the boat has been for the last ten days the upper picket on the James River, going fifteen miles further up than any other boat. They sent shells from Dahlgren and Parrott guns at a few regiments of rebel infantry which were "jayhawking" in the night, and caused them to leave at double quick. On the night of the 10th, the Potomac Army having been withdrawn, and the rear guard, consisting of cavalry regiments, being drawn in, the marines were sent ashore on picket duty, while the cavalry fell back to the transports, which they successfully escaped, cutting down trees and destroying bridges behind them.

The Louisville Journal, of Thursday, says: "We have a well-authenticated report that Col. GARRARD, with six or seven hundred men, attacked Scott's Louisiana Cavalry, on Tuesday, at Locust Bridge, near London, Laurel County. A severe fight ensued, in which the rebels were badly whipped, and put to flight. We have no particulars as to the loss on either side."

Capt. SWAINE, of the regular army, arrived in Cincinnati on Tuesday, from Gen. BURNSIDE's division, and reports that the statements that he has been cut off by the rebels are untrue. Gen. BURNS, he says, is well fortified and will make a good report of himself in a few days.

Our correspondent at Fortress Monroe states that two or three demonstrations have been made against our pickets at Suffolk by rebel cavalry. The first was on Friday, the 15th inst., and the second was on Tuesday last, the rebels on each occasion numbering in the vicinity of one hundred.

Pursuant to call, the Sigel Brigade Committee and other leading German citizens of New-York met yesterday, at the Astor House, and started a subscription list for a recruiting fund of $25,000 with a view to raise 1,000 men for BURNS's Special Corps, in this place, at an extra bounty of $25 apiece. An Executive Committee of great weight and influence was appointed, and $2,200 subscribed on the spot.

GENERAL NEWS.

The accounts which we have from Minnesota of the Indian massacres in the vicinity of Fort Ridgeley are of the most terrible and heart-rending character. It is estimated that at least five hundred men, women and children have been murdered by the savages, and that the whole country is in a state of panic. The Indians are said to be well armed with rifles and ammunition, and to be in great numbers. The Governor of Minnesota has called upon the people for 1,000 men to go to the scene of the massacres, and has appointed Henry H. Sibley to the command of the forces. The Indians have taken possession of Fort Ridgeley, and have driven the people from Hutchinson, Acton, Forest City, Paynesville, Kandiyohi, Green Lake, Lake Ripley, Lake Shetek, Spirit Lake, Little Rock, Dakotah, Ashley, Jackson, Lake Elizabeth, Lake Belle Plaine, Glencoe, Hector, Beaver Falls, Henderson, Traverse, Crow River, Big Stone Lake, Lac Qui Parle, Yellow Medicine, Cottonwood, Watonwan, Pipestone, Rock, Nobles, Cottonwood, Jackson, Martin, Faribault, Freeborn, Mower, Fillmore, Houston, Winona, Olmsted, Wabasha, Goodhue, Pierce, Pepin, Dakotah, Scott, Rice, Steele, Waseca, Le Sueur, Nicollet, Sibley, Renville, Redwood, Brown, Nicollet, Leslie, Watonwan, Blue Earth, Faribault, Martin, Jackson, Cottonwood, Murray, Nobles, Rock, Pipestone, Lincoln, Yellow Medicine, Lac Qui Parle, Big Stone, Traverse, Pope, Stevens, Douglas, Todd, Otter Tail, Wadena, Cass, Crow Wing, Benton, Isanti, Chisago, Pine, Carlton, Aitkin, Kandiyohi, Meeker, Wright, Hennepin, Ramsey, Washington, Goodhue, Wabasha, Olmsted, Winona, Houston, Fillmore, Mower, Freeborn, Steele, Dodge, Waseca, Le Sueur, Rice, Sibley, Nicollet, Renville, Redwood, Brown, Watonwan, Blue Earth, Faribault, Martin, Jackson, Cottonwood, Murray, Nobles, Rock

CONFISCATION OF BLIDELL'S PROPERTY.

An Order Calling for the Delivery of All Private Arms.

The steamship Blockadem, Capt. Trevvan, from New-Orleans on the 13th inst., arrived at this port last evening, with cotton. She encountered severe weather in the Gulf Stream.

The Blockadem has on board the remains of Col. Gideon T. Stanton, of the Seventh Vermont Regiment, who died on the 7th inst., of wounds received at Baton Rouge.

Extract from the Papers the following Government trans[illegible]

"Brig W. H. Wilson, Great Nassau, Bgr. Gilbert; Bark Tuscan and brig Experiment; also a Spanish transport bark, passed going up at the fort.

The news is not specially important. The health of New-Orleans, according to the report of the Secretary of the Board of Health, was unprecedentedly good for this time of year, particularly with so many unacclimated persons there. The total deaths for the week ending the 10th inst. had been just 110, against 141 the week previous—showing a decrease of 31.

We find the following paragraph in the Bulletin of the 10th:

"An intelligent young gentleman, who left Baton Rouge Sunday evening, informs us that the Confederate army was stationed the miles distant from that place, heavily expecting large reinforcements. On Monday, at sunrise, it was their intention to commence an attack on Baton Rouge. The United States forces had called in all their pickets, and seized all horses and mules to leave, with such movable property as they chose to take with them, as the guns and would shell the city the moment the Confederates moved on the outlines."

HEADQUARTERS MILITARY COMMANDANT OF NEW-ORLEANS, CITY HALL, Aug. 11, 1862.

GENERAL ORDER No. 21.—It being a fact that a number of the inhabitants of Baton Rouge, who have been allowed by the United States authorities to retain their private arms, were found cowed and wounded on the battle-field, it is hereby ordered, to prevent the repetition of such breach of trust, that all arms, of whatever description, now in the city, be turned over as follows:

All persons residing below Esplanade-street, in the Twelfth Maine Regiment, at the Confederate States Hotel, in the Third District.

Those residing in the Second District, in the Thirteenth Connecticut Regiment, at the Custom-house.

Those residing in the First District, in the Twenty-first Massachusetts Regiment, at Lafayette-square.

Each person will mark the package or bundle of arms he turns over to his name, and obtain such package or bundle in the presence of the receiving officer; and each receiving officer will keep an accurate list of the names and residences of those who comply with this order, with an inventory of the arms turned in.

This order must be complied with before Saturday next; and any person failing to comply with it as directed, will be held liable to imprisonment at hard labor. By order of GODFREY WEITZEL,

And Acting Military Commandant.

THE DESTRUCTION OF DONALDSONVILLE.

From the Delta of the 12th.

The whole having, in front of Donaldsonville, fired on a Government transport last Thursday, Admiral Farragut, on Friday, ordered a portion of his fleet to canonade the town. There is nothing left of the place but a few sticks.

The town is about fifty miles from New-Orleans, and was the contemplated Capital of Louisiana. There is nothing left of it now but ruins and rubbish.

We understand that all the towns on the banks of the Mississippi River have been notified that, just as soon as practicable, are permitted to fire on the transports passing up or down, they will be shelled and destroyed.

BRAGG'S ARMY.

Correspondence of the New-Orleans Delta.

JACKSON, MISS., Saturday, Aug. 2, 1862.

The army of Gen. BRAGG, which numbers about 20,000 men, is now at Chattanooga, at which point there are at least 30,000 men, under PRICE and BRAGG. The object of the gathering there is two-fold—to surprise, surround and capture BUELL, and "pitch" on to Tennessee and Kentucky. These men are in a most wretched condition. They are destitute of clothing—they are not half fed—there is not a pound of tea to be had for gold, and coffee is $2 50 per pound. The troops subsist solely on corn bread and molasses.

Half the men would desert to-day, if they thought they could get away in safety; but BRAGG keeps a closer watch on them than he does on the enemy. He is a coarse and vulgar tyrant, and I should not be surprised to hear any time of his having been shot by his own men. He drinks to excess, as do all these officers. He quarrels with those around him. BRAZEDALE, who is the most popular man in the army, has resigned in consequence of a quarrel with BRAGG.

There are several Federal prisoners in this place.

GOV. MOORE'S BODY-GUARD.

From the Delta of the 12th.

Gov. THOMAS O. MOORE, the Chief Magistrate of the State of Louisiana, made his appearance in Thibodeaux, last week, in Lafourche. The moment the fact became know the people turned out to mob and murder him. Many people were armed. He begged for mercy; and all but four women who surrounded him, he would have been shot. The people desist Him on account of his cotton-burning and sugar-destroying order.

DEATH OF CAPT. WAINWRIGHT.

Capt. RICHARD WAINWRIGHT, the commanding officer of the flag-ship Hartford, died on Sunday. He has ever since the entrance of the fleet into the Mississippi, ever worked himself, and this, too, against the advice of his chief; and his constitution became so exhausted that he yielded, suddenly to a fever which he contracted up the river. Capt. WAINWRIGHT was one of the best officers in the United States Navy, and a most able, energetic and zealous sailor. He was about 48 years of age. He leaves a wife and four children.—Ibid.

GEN. CORCORAN'S MOVEMENTS.

His Letter Declining a Public Reception—Entertained to Visit Boston and His Response—His Programme.

Gen. CORCORAN, as stated in yesterday's TIMES, respectfully declines the banquet tendered him on behalf of the City of New-York. The following is his letter:

BOSTON HOUSE, Aug. 20, 1862.

Thomas Phelps, Esq., Chairman:

DEAR SIR—I must respectfully decline to accept your generous offer, made in behalf of the City of New-York, of a banquet on Monday evening next. Previous to the reception of your kind offer, I had made other engagements which would prevent the acceptance, even if I had not already determined to leave, immediately after my return to the City, on the discharge of my duties, and to join the Irish Brigade, with which I purpose to enter the field, ready at the earliest practicable moment. It was with this object with that I consented to accept of the hospitalities of the authorities, on my return to this, my adopted City. I do not believe the proposed banquet would in any degree further the object which I, in common with all the loyal men of the land, have in view—to respond with alacrity to the call of the Executive for more troops. I, therefore, respectfully request, (without, however, intending to slight,) that instead of lavishing any further honors on me, the money intended to be expended for such purposes may be applied to furthering the enlistments. Yours,

I have the honor to remain your obedient servant,
MICHAEL CORCORAN,

For similar reasons, the subjoined answer to a dispatch inviting the General to visit Boston was promptly forwarded.

Gen. Michael Corcoran, New-York:

Will you gratify the citizens of Boston by permitting them to hear your voice in old Faneuil Hall. Answer in the affirmative, and you may rely upon a reception worthy of your gallantry and the glorious cause in which you have suffered.

JOSEPH M. WIGHTMAN, Mayor.

ASTOR HOUSE, NEW-YORK, Aug. 23, 1862.

Hon. Joseph M. Wightman, Mayor of Boston:

I should be much pleased to accept your kind invitation, and will do so at some future time, if the interests of the public service will permit.

MICHAEL CORCORAN.

The patriotic proprietor of the Astor House, having offered the hospitalities of his house to Gen. CORCORAN, the latter was disposed at first to accept, but, upon reflection, concluded to remain where, as the guest of the City, he had been first quartered—the St. Nicholas. During yesterday, however, he availed himself of the opportunity to receive his friends in one of Mr. Brasher's spacious parlors. He was called upon by many distinguished gentlemen in military and civil life, representing all professions and occupations and various sections of the country.

The prospects of the new Irish Brigade are flattering. Among the organizations mentioned as likely to join it are a Buffalo regiment, two companies from Troy, Col. HAGGAN's One Hundred and Sixteenth Pennsylvania, besides the gallant Sixty-ninth. No doubt companies will be forthcoming from all the loyal States.

Yesterday afternoon the General enjoyed a dinner at the St. Nicholas with a number of distinguished guests.

WHAT WAS SAID AND DONE.

Alderman FARLEY presided at the dinner with his accustomed grace. Gen. CORCORAN occupied the seat on his right and Father MOONEY the left. Among those present were Col. HAGGAN, of the One Hundred and Sixteenth Pennsylvania, Lieut.-Col. MURRAY, Capt. MELVIN, Aldermen DAVTON, MITCHELL and WALSH, and Col. MIX. Due justice having been done to the viands, Alderman FARLEY, in a neat address of a few timely words, presented the guest of the City, Gen. CORCORAN, who was duly honored in flowing bumpers.

GEN. CORCORAN'S SPEECH.

GENTLEMEN: I am most happy in being able to attest the hospitality of the municipal authorities of the city of New-York in greeting me on this occasion. To your Mayor particularly, whom I never had the pleasure of meeting until on this occasion, I tender my most heartfelt thanks, for the kindness and courtesy extended to me. I leave you on the morrow to rejoin my old regiment near Washington, for the purpose of escorting them to their home in this city, when I shall immediately enter upon the business of raising my new brigade, of which my old will be no inconsiderable part. I expect soon to resume my old position on the field, to battle for my country, its maintenance and dignity. I shall be upheld and sustained by strong arms and brave hearts, and with them—for of such is our army composed—I have no fear of the final result. (Cheers.) In conclusion, I propose as a toast—The Mayor and Common Council of the City of New-York. (Cheers.)

Alderman DAVTON followed in a highly patriotic and eloquent speech, predicting success for Col. CORCORAN and the Union cause, and commending the fraternal spirit which seems to pervade the whole North. He concluded with a toast complimentary to Rev. Father MOONEY, Chaplain of the Sixty-ninth Regiment.

Father MOONEY responded in a telling address. He depicted the inestimable privileges enjoyed by American citizens in the glorious heritage of our fathers—a heritage which was their reward for devoted patriotism and a self-sacrificing performance of duty—a country worthy of the talent, genius, wealth and enterprise of those who are native to it, and of those who are invited to participate in its blessings—a country which is the home of the oppressed of every clime, and whose natural advantages bear impress of the bounteous blessings of the Creator. He spoke in poetic praise of the noble emblems of the republic—the stars of Heaven, and the noble eagle, and regarded the fact that we had selected those beautiful and grand insignia as indicative of a lofty and beneficent future. (Applause.) He regarded it as specially fortunate that this war had continued such as needed such conviction; that the adopted citizens of this country were by no means a detriment to it; that the bigoted spirit of Native Americanism was entirely crushed, never to be resurrected. He thanked God that he had lived to see this day. He gave an account of a lecture which he had heard a pretended patriot give, warning the American people against the destructive spread of Popery as the arch enemy of the Republic, and yet, that lecturer had visited Fort Corcoran in citizen's dress, while he, the Papist listener, wore the uniform of the army of the Union. (Applause.) In conclusion he said, may God give a speedy success to the efforts of our Generals, our Government Departments, and our worthy soldiers. May God soon fill our ranks with the desired recruits. "The Union and success to its arms."

GEN. CORCORAN COMPLIMENTS SOMEBODY.

Gen. CORCORAN at this point rose and said: I think that it would be neglecting one of my most important duties, I should allow this occasion to pass by without saying a word, all of heartfelt gratitude to the noble lady who, at the outset of my career—a man who was the first to go on the field of Manassas, and was the last to leave the field, and who, when the great took place, did not waver, but looked where the colors of the Sixty-ninth were, and there took his stand awaiting orders. (Applause.) That man is now a prisoner in Richmond, and I am glad to remember his services, and bear testimony to the way in which he did his duty, for never did man do his duty better than he did on the occasion. (Applause.)

Capt. MELVIN responded, modestly accepting, as deserved, the compliment of the General. He had, he said, been induced to follow the profession of arms for the purpose of aiding, to the best of his ability, the cause of Ireland. He did not regret the opportunity which he had embraced of fighting for the cause of the Union, and was glad that there was a possibility of his experience being made available to serve his native land. He thanked them for the flattering manner in which they had received his name.

Gen. CORCORAN took occasion to say that he would award the same meed of praise to Lieut. EDWARD CORNELLY, of the Sixty-ninth, whose name was likewise received with applause.

The General pleasantly remarked that his friend, who had just taken his seat, was called by the rebels the impudent Irishman. He (Capt. MELVIN) had undertaken to write a letter to him, and had headed it "Headquarters Advance Guard, Army of the Mississippi, New-Orleans." At that time there were just four Union soldiers in New-Orleans, and they were in prison. (Laughter.) The Captain's property was pretty safe, however, for Gen. BUTLER was not far behind them. (Laughter and applause.) In conclusion, Gen. CORCORAN called upon Col. MIX, as an ardent lover of the Union, to favor the company with his views.

Col. MIX complied in an earnest, blood-stirring, laughter-provoking speech. He recalled the story of the distinction between native and adopted citizens—the former came in the morning boat, and the latter in the evening boat. (Applause and laughter.) He expressed his abhorrence of the Know Nothing principle, and his gratification that it was now effectually killed by the achievements and aspirations of the achievements of the gallant CORCORAN. He expressed his willingness to join Gen. CORCORAN in his resumption of the duties of the battle-field.

Alderman FARLEY next proposed the health of Lieut.-Col. MURRAY, family stationed at Baltimore, which was responded to by the Lieutenant-Colonel, and honored by the Company.

Alderman FARLEY next introduced Col. HAGGAN, of the One Hundred and Sixteenth Pennsylvania, ready to join the Irish Brigade.

Alderman WALSH remarked that the Colonel was more of a fighting man than a speech-making man. (Laughter.)

Col. HAGGAN briefly expressed his willingness to serve with his regiment under the leadership of Gen. CORCORAN, and promised to do his best to maintain for his portion of the Brigade the unsullied name. (Applause.)

GEN. CORCORAN PRAISES THE ENGINEERS.

Gen. CORCORAN now rose and said: I rise to propose the health of a man who needs no eulogy at my hands, nor at the hands of any other living man—a man whose name has been revered and respected by all—a man who has sustained this Government from the outbreak of the unholy rebellion,—a man who has confidence in the Government, and in whom the Government has confidence. (Applause.) A man who is introducing Father MOONEY to the position of chaplain of my regiment, and said to me, "Tell the Sixty-ninth Regiment that I could be gratified if they are first brave on the battle-field, and then humane after the battle is closed." I give you, gentlemen, the health of His Grace Rev. Archbishop HUGHES. (Applause.)

Alderman DAVTON took occasion to speak of the Archbishop in terms of praise, and cordially seconded the toast, which was drunk with all the honors.

Father MOONEY was called upon to respond to this toast likewise, and did it with his accustomed good taste. He spoke of the sacrifices which the Archbishop had made in sparing him from the home ministry to give spiritual comfort to the army. He said the Archbishop's advice to the soldiers was, to be brave as lions in battle, and meek as lambs after battle. (Applause.) In conclusion, Father MOONEY paid a high compliment to President LINCOLN, whose letter to Rev. GARRETT he read from the third edition of the evening TIMES. The letter of the President was received with general satisfaction. In conclusion, he gave as a toast, "The Union and the President."

Gen. CORCORAN—Yes; says the Union, and discuss political issues afterward.

Col. MIX told a humorous story about a woman who had a tree in her coffee-pot, and couldn't get it out. After repeated unsuccessful trials, she finally filled the kettle with water, and let it boil, and the frog jumped out. Just so he would let the war go on, and let Slavery take care of itself. (Applause.)

Alderman FARLEY proposed the health of Gov. MORGAN.

GEN. CORCORAN COMPLIMENTS GOV. MORGAN AND THE PRESS.

Gen. CORCORAN said: As an officer under the rank of Gov. MORGAN, I suppose the duty devolves upon me to respond. I can testify to the extreme kindness with which the Governor has treated me during my absence. Wendell and myself, on the occasion of doing me a favor, he appointed me to an office within the gift of the State, but which, as I could not fulfill its duties, I was obliged to decline. I cannot, however, fail to acknowledge the courtesy which has marked his conduct toward me. I believe he is actuated with a desire to prosecute the war with an aim solely to the preservation of the Union and the Constitution. In conclusion, gentlemen, I give you, as a sentiment, the Press of the City of New-York.

This toast having been responded to in a few modest remarks by the representative of the TIMES,

Ald. DAVTON took occasion to call attention to a coming war meeting to be held in the City Hall Park, under the auspices of the Common Council, for the purpose of aiding the raising of Gen. CORCORAN's brigade.

Ald. FARLEY said it had been suggested by an enterprising and patriotic citizen of New-York, our worthy Chamberlain, DANIEL E. DAVLIN, that this command of Gen. CORCORAN's shall be known as

THE IRISH LEGION.

Gen. CORCORAN has accepted that name, and the organization will be known by it in future. (Applause.)

Alderman WALSH toasted TRUMBOW WEBB, Esq., and Father MOONEY toasted Alderman DAVTON, and Alderman DAVTON complimented the proprietors of the hotel, TERBUSHELL, WEBCOMB & Co., all of which were duly honored.

Alderman FARLEY, in a well-timed address, called attention to the fact that they had entirely overlooked the important part taken by the Secretary of War and Adjt.-Gen. THOMAS in securing the release of Gen. CORCORAN. He gave as a sentiment the health of the Secretary of War, Mr. STANTON, and that of Adjt.-Gen. THOMAS.

Complimentary toasts were drunk in honor of Alderman SMITH and Alderman MITCHELL, and appropriately acknowledged.

A deputation from Buffalo, consisting of Messrs. MCMAHON, BUTLER, CLARK and Rev. JOHN ABBOTT, at this point waited upon Gen. CORCORAN, and tendered him an invitation to visit Buffalo for the purpose of receiving into his brigade the regiment forming there under the auspices of Col. MCMAHON, a son of one of the members of the deputation. Another son of the same gentleman is an Aid-de-Camp to Gen. MCCLELLAN; and a third is, or was, a Captain in the Sixty-ninth. The deputation was received with due honors, but, of course, Gen. CORCORAN declined to go.

Lieut.-Col. MURRAY proposed the health of Gen. MCCLELLAN.

Ald. DAVTON added: "And all the Generals who are fighting the battles of the country to sustain the Constitution and the Union."

Col. MIX paid a tribute of praise to Gen. MCCLELLAN's military genius, and predicted for him an ultimate victory.

Other toasts and speeches followed, and the festivities were prolonged until a late hour.

City of Boston and Gen. Corcoran.

BOSTON, Saturday, Aug. 23.

A committee from this city, consisting of E. D. JORDAN and JAMES FOSS, Jr., accompanied by Mayor WIGHTMAN will arrive in New-York to-morrow, (Sunday,) for the purpose of inviting Gen. CORCORAN to visit Boston. The Committee also intend to invite Archbishop HUGHES.

Officers in the Corcoran Procession.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I would like to correct an error which inadvertently appeared in your paper of this date. In the account of the "Corcoran Procession" you make no mention of the representation of our regiment, but merely make mention that after the Phenix Regiment, Capt. LEGRAND commanding, walked a body of volunteer officers of duty in New-York. That body of officers was ours, consisting of ten Captains and eighteen Lieutenants in uniform, and two lines of Sergeants, five paces apart, twenty-six in number, and walking in our ranks the only volunteer officers not belonging to our regiment was First Lieut. DUNAVY, Battery B, Irish Brigade, Gen. FOX's army. Lieut.-Col. SMITH and myself were in line also. I challenge the City of New-York to turn out a finer body of men than those yesterday, and I take just pride in everything relating to the welfare of my regiment.

As no other body of volunteer officers or non-commissioned officers were in the procession yesterday but mine, you would oblige me by giving credit where credit is due.

Very respectfully, yours,
JAMES C. BURKE,
Colonel Fourth Regiment, Eagle Brigade.

ARRIVAL OF MR. HALL TO GO ON POLAR—ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE EXPEDITION.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Friday, Aug. 22.

The bark George Henry, of Row-London, Capt. Bennetson, from Frobisher's Bay, has arrived here, short of provisions, and with Mr. HALL, of the new Sir John Franklin Expedition, on board.

The Expedition lost one man the first winter out. He froze to death.

Mr. HALL reports that in consequence of the loss of some of his craft he was unable to prosecute his mission to the extent of its purpose.

The Expedition had probably determined the fate of two boats' crews of Sir JOHN FRANKLIN's Expedition, who perished in endeavoring to return.

Mr. HALL learned the fate of five men captured from FRANKLIN, on his first voyage, and identified the exact places of their landing.

Mr. HALL explored over a thousand miles of the coast, including the so-called Frobisher's Straits, which prove to be a deep bay, terminating in lat. 63° 45', long. 70° West.

Mr. HALL also discovered a great glacier and mountain of Resolute, between Hudson's Straits and Frobisher's Bay.

The George Henry was about to start for the States in October, 1861, but was prevented doing so by ice until the 9th inst. The ship's company subsisted through last Winter by the hospitality of the Esquimaux.

DISPATCH FROM MR. HALL TO MR. GRINNELL.

The following is a telegram received yesterday morning by Mr. HENRY GRINNELL:

ON BOARD THE GEORGE HENRY, ST. JOHNS, N. F.

Henry Grinnell, New-York:

I am bound for the Cumberland Gulf, to renew my voyage. I have not prosecuted my mission to the extent proposed, on account of my craft; but, thank God, He hath empowered me to do something. I have determined the fate of probably two boats' crews of Sir JOHN FRANKLIN—solved the mystery of three hundred years relative to Sir MARTIN FROBISHER's expedition, under the auspices of Queen ELIZABETH—have learned the fate of five men captured from FROBISHER by the Esquimaux—found and identified the exact place of their landing and prior account of Warrington's Sound therefrom—FROBISHER's attempt to plant the colony of one hundred men—recovered a large number of relics of said expedition, and have explored over one thousand miles of coast, including the so-called Frobisher's Strait, which I have discovered to be a deep bay terminating in lat. 63° 45' North, and lon. 70° West.

I have also discovered a great glacier and a mountain of Resolute between Hudson Strait and Bay of Frobisher.

The George Henry was about to depart for the States 15th October, 1861, but thick ribbed ice kept her cottonbed until Aug. 9, 1862. The ship's company subsisted mostly through the Winter by the generous hospitality of the Esquimaux. I have with me a family of these people—man, wife and child.

The records of my work North accompany these sealed papers. Details of the expedition will be reported to you on my arrival. C. F. HALL.

FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

Threatened Emeute at Port Townsend, Washington Territory.

SAN FRANCISCO, Wednesday, Aug. 20.

The money market is well supplied and the demand is active, at the usual rates. Exchange on New-York is at 10@12 per cent. discount.

Little disposition is manifested to extend operations in merchandise at the high rates demanded.

The jobbing trade is good considering the season. Sales, 1,500 bbls. Crushed Sugar, to arrive, at 15c.

The inhabitants of Port Townsend, Washington Territory, are furiously excited in consequence of the removal of the Custom-house to Port Angelo, the new port created by Congress, and which is opposite to Victoria.

They threatened resistance, and only gave up the Custom-house records when the war ship Shawsheen threatened to fire a broadside on them in case of any further demonstrations.

The population of Port Townsend is 300, having $40,000 taxable property.

Port Angelo has no population and no houses, but has a good harbor.

SAN FRANCISCO, Friday, Aug. 22.

Trade is very quiet.

The ships Sea King and Thatcher Magoun have been chartered to load with breadstuffs for England.

Gold in considerable quantities is arriving at Los Angelos from the new Colorado mines, situated southeastwardly of the Colorado River, sixty miles north of Fort Yuma, and one hundred miles south of the Mohave, and extending indefinitely into an unexplored country, occupied by hostile Indians.

About 800 Americans and 700 Mexicans are engaged in prospecting, and with such encouraging indications of success that migration in that direction is very considerable, which must result in the thorough exploration of an extensive region of country hitherto unknown, but believed to be rich in gold.

SAN FRANCISCO, Thursday, Aug. 21.

The political caucuses are becoming very exciting.

Senator BAKER is stumping the State, and is well received by both wings of the Democratic Party, but is bitterly opposed by the Republicans.

The probabilities are that the Republicans will secure a majority in the Legislature, though the contest looks fair to be a close one.

The Breckinridge Democrats make no nominations for the Legislature, and will support the Union, or Lincoln ticket, in the different counties of the State.

A large portion of the town of Bear Valley, on Major-Gen. FREMONT's Mariposa estate, including the Sh. Charles Hotel and the Government block, were destroyed by fire on the 17th inst. The loss is not yet ascertained.

Departure of the United States Steamer Connecticut for the Gulf.

The United States steamer Connecticut sailed from the Brooklyn Navy-yard, on Saturday, for the Gulf. She had on board a large cargo of necessaries for our men-of-war on the blockade, a mail for New-Orleans and the different ships of the squadron, and an immense quantity of parcels from the friends of sailors and soldiers. We had the following passengers on board:

A Rich Prize at Port Royal.

A PRIZE-MONEY QUESTION BETWEEN ARMY AND NAVY.

The subjoined letter tells its own story in very brief language, and suggests recently the inequality of the system which gives to the navy one-half of all prizes captured, while not allowing one cent to the army, even where property worth many millions of dollars has been seized. In this case, so far as the navy was concerned, the prize-steamer Ladona, laden with a cargo of wines and medicines, worth nearly a million of dollars, had accomplished a successful voyage, and was on her way rejoicing up the Savannah River—she was hailed by several shots from the Martello Battery, and finally driven out to sea again; after which she very foolishly ran into Ossabaw Sound, not thinking it occupied by National cruisers, and almost dropped anchor under the guns of the Ossabaw, which was lying concealed behind a neck of land, covered with trees. The navy is given half the value of this prize—Capt. TATTNALL, of the Martello Battery, not one cent.

HEADQUARTERS DETACHMENT OF THE SOUTH,
HILTON HEAD, PORT ROYAL, S. C., Aug. 5, 1862.

Col. Wm. B. Barton, Forty-eighth N. Y. Volunteers, Commanding Port Royal District:

COLONEL: The Major-General commanding directs me to express through you to Capt. FRANCIS, Forty-eighth Regiment New-York Volunteers, commanding the Martello Tower, Tybee Island, his thanks for the vigilance, promptness and energy displayed, which about 12 M., on the night of the 4th inst., enabled him to pursue and drive back the steamer Ladona, laden with stores contraband of war destined for the use of the rebels in Savannah—this in violation of the blockading squadron, and being under full way to Savannah, when so greeted and driven out to sea, when, the steamer Capt. FRANCIS will be happy to hear, the steamer was pursued and captured by U. S. gunboat Dandelie, and is now lying a prize in this harbor.

I have the honor to be, Colonel, very respectfully, Your ob't servant,
CHARLES G. HALPINE,
Major A. A. G. and Chief of Staff.

It is well known that the frauds concerning the Department of the South have caused many millions of dollars worth of cotton, and have turned over the same to the Government. The same is true, though in a less degree, of the orders in the Mississippi Department, commanded by Gens. POPE, HALLECK, and others. Is there any good reason why fair shares be made of one arm of the National service and deal of another? Let the navy receive its pay for the service of its "bow and stern," and not the army? Will some of our legislators, Senators (who had not long ago) give this matter their attention.

Shipment of Confederate Notes.

BALTIMORE, Saturday, Aug. 23.

A man named JOHN W. GARRETT, formerly a resident of this city, was detected last night having in possession three hundred and twenty-five thousand Confederate Notes. A DELIGHTFUL SUPERIOR SUMMER TOUR.

[illegible] through the South Pass, Marquette, Ontonagon, Eagle River, Copper Harbor, Eagle River, Ontonagon, Marquette, Sault Ste. Marie, Mackinaw, Detroit, Toledo, Sandusky, Cleveland, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Rochester, Albany, Troy, New-York. [illegible]

Detroit, Friday, Aug. 15, 1862.

I have just returned from one of the most delightful excursions within the reach of the American tourist. About ten days ago we left Detroit, with flags flying and a fine band of music, on the splendidly equipped steamer Planet, for Superior City, by way of Mackinaw, and every day of the trip was crowded with objects of interest and enjoyment. The company of over three hundred passengers were from all sections of the country, although Cleveland and Detroit furnished the larger proportion; New-York being represented by several of her leading merchants and their known business men. At Mackinaw we climbed the fortress-crowned bluff and gazed on the rock-ribbed coast of Lakes Huron and Michigan, with the sunset glow tinging island, forest and lake with a wizard beauty that even GURNEY'S most perfect coloring could never make like upon canvas. One of the most noticeable features of these lakes is the wondrous transparency of the water.

We were gazed down forty and fifty feet into the depths beneath, and see distinctly schools of fish swimming and playing in the clear water. The whole outline of the boat, from stem to stern, as she lies by the wharf, is perfectly revealed. The arched rock and cave of skulls, with their Indian legends, furnished food for the romantically curious, while the three decrepit old men from Tippecanoe, over which one hundred of the stalwart sons of Michigan, keep ticket guard and watch, were objects of interest to those who had never before seen in Eastern prisons strangers with Rebels. Assuredly if one could select their own place of exercise the Mackinaw would be crowded with inmates from Forts Warren and Lafayette. In this pure, bright, bracing atmosphere, surrounded by glorious scenery, and in clean, comfortable quarters, prison life wears a very different aspect from the dark, filthy cells where CORCORAN and Lee and other brave soldiers and accomplished gentlemen have passed the sum of human misery. Commend me to Mackinaw for a Summer resort, dear! my trusty pen should ever betray my pleasant heart to a frowning Secretary.

Coming through the beautiful Straits of the Ste. Marie River, we came to the celebrated Sault, locally called the Soo, where for a mile the river rushes and foams for mighty fathoms against the huge rocks and down the current. This was the head of navigation for the hitherto, until with great enterprise and engineering skill, the State of Michigan constructed the mile and a half of canal that connects the waters of Superior with those of Huron. The work is massive and imposing—its width and the size of its locks equaling any similar construction on the continent. Here in a canoe with Indian at prow and helm, I made the shoot of the rapids. We were less than four minutes in making the mile, darting amid the ugly rocks, and forming whirlpools with a celerity and skill that filled me with pleasurable excitement, which was only heightened by the sense of possible danger. Several lives have been lost by the sides of the powerful steam sweeping these frail, birch canoes against the rocks, and once in the clutch of the rapids no strong swimmer can escape certain death. However, these accidents are very rare, and one such fact is the fruitful mother of a hundred traditions of Indian maidens, etc., etc.

We were all on the qui vive for the Pictured Rocks on the south shore of Lake Superior, but unfortunately, although we ran within Grand Island, and close to the shore, we found that the pictures were under a cloud, and not visible. [illegible]

"Mock Nature's evening entertainer
On all the shores and flowing vestibules of earth."

To a vivid imagination, castles, grottoes and gardens stand forth in fairy-like beauty. All I have to say on this subject is: "I didn't see it."

[illegible] on attack upon a copper mine near Houghton, on Portage River, and spent four or five hours of a night with great interest, under ground among the drifts, leads, miners and infernals. We tramped off in the rain and darkness from the boat about 8 o'clock, and after stumbling for a mile back of the village we came to the Isle Royal mine. Here we were furnished with guides and equipped for the subterranean journey. Laying aside the habiliments of civilized life, we donned the coarse, greasy canvas suit of the miner. With boots that defied water, and a queer-looking hatin of a felt hat, solid and stout enough to shield a head from an avalanche of trap, and which bore a clay-daubed candle proudly in its front, our costume was complete. We entered the mine by a ladder, delightfully muddy and moist, and climbed down, down in silence and gloom into the bowels of the earth, where no light, save a miner's "dip," ever gleamed, full 500 feet under ground. We crawled through narrow passages, low gangways and wet paths, our candle shedding a dim uncertain light along our perilous path, where a single misstep would lose a life or a limb. Everywhere around us the copper gleamed and glittered; now in great blocks just quarried from the rock-ribbed earth, and then in the fine particles which the miners call stamp copper. The earth teemed with wealth at every step. Through the dark silent caverns occasionally a fitful twilight would creep as the grim-looking miners wheeled their barrow, each with its clay-fastened candle, along the slippery plank laden with the broken ore. Ever and anon the silence would be broken by the splashing of water, as it trickles along the rock and falls into the narrow rugged pathway, the whispered murmurs of the distant miners, and the loud crash of the blast reverberating through these halls of gloom.

At Montreal we visited the Iron Mountains. Mining for iron, copper, tin, in fact all the metals, is carried on to a great extent at this place, and within a space of more than the size of Central Park, [illegible] scientific analysis and practical experience have established the fact, that no less in the world possesses the same brightness and [illegible] the Marquette ore. It is a wonderful [illegible] hills composed of 60 per cent. [illegible]

But I have detained you quite long enough without mentioning the champagne [illegible] the excellent whitefish and trout, the [illegible] country of Copper Harbor and Duyfield, the [illegible] village of Superior City, or the large [illegible] and extensive mills of Ontonagon. If I have [illegible] in giving a faint record of a delightful excursion in a region teeming with wealth [illegible] with beauty, my task is accomplished.

—A correspondent of an Albany paper writes from this City:

"Mayor Opdyke is a prisoner here this season at his post of duty. Should he leave the City the Board of Aldermen would be immediately called together, and perchance some fantastic tricks in that body would be 'cut up,' in the way of 'appointments and removals.' Schodder's Mountain, Saratoga, Newport, Long Branch, may be very pleasant resorts for gentlemen of substance; society may be cultivated, pleasant, delightful; at Saratoga sundry accidental meetings may be held in some parlor to talk about the affairs of State, and names may be mentioned or written 'on the slate' for official stations; but our watchful Mayor cannot this season inhale the air, enjoy the society, or attend the select caucus."

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Fullmer Murder.

APPROACHING TRIAL OF RAMSEY.

The trial of GEORGE RAMSEY, for the murder of FULLMER, is to come off at Freehold, Monmouth, N. J., on the 24 of September, instant. It is stated by those who have the means of knowing, that much additional testimony, on the part of the people, has recently been discovered by the Police of this City. Aside from the deep mystery in which this murder has been enshrouded, the notoriety which has been given to it by the arrest of Mrs. MARTS and her sister, ALMEDA FULLMER,—(who hung herself while in prison,)—and the large amount of money and diamonds, of which the murdered man was the owner at the time of his death, there are some questions of a scientific character, which will render this trial one of more than ordinary interest. The question as to the jurisdiction by the Courts of New-Jersey will, it is said, be brought up by the counsel for the prisoner, at the outset of the trial. The deceased was last seen alive in company with the prisoner on a Friday night, and the following Monday morning his body was found in the Shrewsbury River, beyond the Highland light-house, in the State of New-Jersey. Ex-Judge SEWARD, as counsel for RAMSEY, proposes, as one part of his defence, to show that, as a matter of law, the finding of a dead body in the State of New-Jersey is only a circumstance going to prove that the death occurred there, but one which may be rebutted and overcome by evidence tending to prove that the murder was actually committed in the City of Brooklyn. This branch of the case will be novel and interesting, as the laws of the winds and tides of the Harbor of New-York, the Bay and the channel of the Narrows leading to the sea, also the laws of specific gravity of water and of the human body, and furthermore, the medical inquiry as to the decomposition of the deceased's person, are questions which it is proposed shall be taken into consideration for the purpose of ascertaining where, as well as by whom the murder was committed. Owing to all these circumstances, the forthcoming trial of RAMSEY will doubtless be one as full of interest as any which ever took place in Monmouth County.

The Passport System in New-York.

The business at the Deputy Provost-Marshal's Office, in Broome-street, has been very brisk for the last few days. The office has been constantly crowded with persons desirous of leaving the country, but who could not take their departure, without first having their passes vised by Deputy-Marshal CARRAHAN. The following shows the number of persons accommodated in this way within the last five days:

Aug. 19, number of passports vised	91
Aug. 20, number of passports vised	96
Aug. 21, number of passports vised	101
Aug. 22, number of passports vised	96
Aug. 23, number of passports vised	96
Total number in five days	456

The great majority of those applying are unnaturalized residents, but occasionally a man applies for a passport who is a citizen, liable to be drafted. In all such cases the parties are directed to the office of RUFUS MURRAY, United States Marshal, where, before a pass is furnished them, they are under the necessity of executing a bond, with one sufficient surety, in the sum of $1,000, to the effect that in case they are drafted they will perform military duty, as required by the laws of the United States.

Gen. Corcoran at Bradley's Gallery.

On Saturday, Brig.-Gen. MICHAEL CORCORAN, in compliance with an invitation extended by Mr. BRADY, visited his superb National Gallery, on Broadway, corner of Ninth-street.

Gen. CORCORAN was accompanied by Capt. KIZZER, Capt. BARRIER, Lieut. CONNELLY, Hon. Mr. EDY, and others of his traveling party, and after going through the Historical Collection, and gazing with emotion upon the well-remembered and admirably pictured Bull Run battle-field, went to the "execution" room, where Mr. BRADY secured a fine full-length "Imperial" portrait of the General, and also took smaller ones for the popular carte de visite.

The former can be seen, and the latter purchased, at Mr. BRADY'S salesroom, connected with the gallery.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

A HOME TO THE HOMELESS.—There is a class of scoundrelistic lodgers in this City, known by sight to everybody, but intimately by none. They lounge unsystematically on the steps of the principal Broadway Hotels, sleep in pieces of doorways—no, no doubt! [illegible] will not [illegible] them, and unless the authorities act upon this suggestion, these rascals, who are not even gamblers, will escape the fiery trial through which all good men must pass, and will remain as opposite to the respectable citizens, while he laughs victoriously at them and their troubles. By law-books these people are called vagrants—here we say law is force!

Coroner COLLIN held an inquest yesterday upon the body of Mrs. MARY MILLER, aged 50 years, who resided at No. 68 Baxter-street. The evidence given upon the investigation showed that the woman died of rum and starvation. The room in which she was found dead was destitute of every article of furniture, her bed being the bare floor.

SENSELESS LAWYERS.—Marshal MURRAY has given notice to the shysters and land-sharks who for months past have been in the habit of daily visiting the buildings occupied by the U. S. Courts in this city, and there, under the pretence that they were regular attorneys-at-law, have swindled several witnesses and jurors out of their legal fees, that he will no longer tolerate this fraud to go around the building, and that if they are again caught in the act of swindling as they were on Friday last, their names will be published in the papers, and steps taken to otherwise punish them as their offence deserves.

A CLERK CHARGED WITH GRAND LARCENY.—A clerk in the employ of Mr. E. D. BARROWS, in Fourth-avenue, was arrested yesterday, charged with stealing from a money-drawer the sum of $40, during the temporary absence of his employer. The prisoner is an Englishman, about 18 years of age, named WM. GOODWIN. He was taken before Justice KEESE, at the Jefferson Market Police Court, and held to bail in the sum of $500 to answer.

MOVEMENTS OF HON. MR. ERV.—Hon. ALEXANDER H. ERV, late of Mobile, Ala., a fellow-prisoner of Gen. CORCORAN, participated in the glorious welcome extended to that personage on Friday, left the City yesterday on a trip through the western part of the State. BEECHER and other gentlemen of local prominence will be invited to address the meeting. Let the ball open, and roll on.

BARNUM'S THEORY AND ROPE.—Mr. BARNUM'S attractive advertisement this morning announces that his great gift, Gen. TOM THUMB, and his second prodigy, Commodore NUTT, will continue to struggle for the popular favor, and to day the unlucky $1,000, which BARNUM offers, during this and the last week. Aside from the great attraction, we cheerfully bear witness to the excellent behavior of his rare tropical fish and the inexplicable wonders of his superb aquaria.

SAILED ABROAD.—The mail steamer Bavaria, Capt. MEIER, sailed for Southampton, Havre and Hamburg, yesterday, at 12 M., with the United States mails, 62 cabin passengers, 116 steerage passengers, and $230,000 in specie. Rev. GYSBERT MOESERS, United States Minister, Abo, in Sweden, was one of her passengers.

LAW REPORTS.

United States District Court.

CHARTER—REFUSAL TO RECEIVE CARGO—DEMURRAGE—DAMAGES.

The Atlantic and Pacific Guano Company vs. The ship Robert Center, 4c., and Joseph B. Arnold, Master.—Opinion—SHIPMAN, J.—In the Winter and Spring of 1858-9, the libelants were the owners of guano on Swan Island in the Caribbean Sea. On the 10th day of December, 1858, they entered into a contract with one George W. Cochran, by the terms of which the latter was to charter vessels and transport guano to market, the cargoes to be subject to the payment of freight and charges, and out of the surplus the libelants were first to receive eight dollars per ton. The guano was to be delivered to the consignees of the libelants and the latter were entitled to bills of lading. There were other stipulations in the contract which it is not necessary to notice in this place, but which may be referred to hereafter when I come to examine the state of the respondents to demurrage.

In January, 1859, Cochran, in carrying out the enterprise in which he had engaged with the libelants, chartered the ship Robert Center, of, and then lying in the Port of New-York. The ship was owned by Edward C. Center, and Arnold, her master. The former owning three-fourths, and the latter one-fourth.

Before the charter of the ship was concluded with Cochran, Capt. Arnold and Mr. Caldwell, the agent of Edward Center, called at the office of the libelants in New-York, for the purpose, as they allege, of ascertaining if the guano would be delivered to the ship under Cochran's charter, and what, were the probable facilities of loading the cargo. They there saw the agents of the libelants, Mr. Fabens, the Secretary, and Mr. Fowler, the President of the Company. In the evidence before the Court there is some sharp contradictions as to what took place at this interview; the great single fact between the parties being whether or not Cochran, at this time knew, or admitted that he knew, what the terms of Cochran's contract with the libelants were. In determining the general question of the liability of the ship, however, I do not think it of great importance whether Capt. Arnold knew the terms of this contract or not, although the balance of the proofs is in favor of the claim that he did. It will be seen, in the course of this opinion, that I rest the liability of the ship on other grounds.

1. The first question raised by the respondents is that the Court has no jurisdiction. This objection is untenable. It is a plain case of a general charter, party—a well-known form of maritime contract, the cargo being put on board by an outer freighter, who was entitled to the bills of lading, and consignee, to the agents of the latter at the port of destination.

2. The undertaking was to carry the cargo to Antwerp and there deliver to Marsily, the consignee of the libelants. There is no escape upon the evidence before the Court from the conclusion that Capt. Arnold so understood it. He offered to sign bills of lading to this effect, although he refused to sign those tendered him, but his refusal rested wholly on other grounds. The ship proceeded on her voyage with the cargo on board as far as Flushing, within about seventy miles of Antwerp. Here Cochran, who had preceded the ship to Europe, met her, and both he and Capt. Arnold proceeded to Antwerp, leaving the ship at Flushing. They found Marsily, the consignee, and Captain Arnold tendered him the cargo, or perhaps it would be more proper to say, offered to tender it. Marsily refused to receive it. This refusal appears to be relied on, is formally alleged in the answer, and is proved by the evidence. Surely, all this trouble and formality of an offer to Marsily to deliver the cargo to him at Antwerp would not have been gone through with if Capt. Arnold had not understood that he was bound to the libelants to deliver it. If he was bound only to Cochran, the latter could have dispensed with any obligation due to him as well at Flushing as at Antwerp. It was not necessary for Capt. Arnold to travel seventy miles to Antwerp and make a formal tender to Marsily, for Cochran, or to the [illegible] that, while Capt. Arnold felt it his duty, and surely was, to offer the cargo to Marsily, the consignee of the libelants, he somehow imbibed the notion (probably through bad advice,) that the refusal of Marsily to receive it left it at the absolute control of Cochran. This was a mere and a delusion. He should, on the refusal of Marsily to receive it, have delivered it to some other proper and responsible house, who would have received it on the same terms as those on which it was consigned to Marsily; or if no such house would receive it on those terms, he should have delivered it at Antwerp, subject to the order of the libelants. This was the duty which the maritime law imposes on shipmasters, founded in good sense, and enforced by considerations of convenience and safety to both shipowners and freighters. There is no evidence that Capt. Arnold intended to defraud the owners of this cargo, but it is clear he mistook his duty, and committed an error for which his ship is liable to the extent of the damages which resulted to the libelants from that error.

Now, what were those damages? It is claimed by the libelants that the rule of damages should be the eight dollars per ton which Cochran was in a certain event to pay them for the guano. But, in the present state of the case, no such rule can be adopted. This would be visiting upon Capt. Arnold and his ship a mere arbitrary penalty for his error, and would in effect make him an insurer of all possible profits which might have accrued to the libelants out of their enterprise with Cochran. The profits of that enterprise, which were wholly contingent, would, by this error of Capt. Arnold, become wholly certain and absolute. If this rule were to be applied to the case, the libelants might well congratulate themselves that the act of Capt. Arnold, of which they formally and rightfully complain in their libel, had rendered the success of this somewhat dubious enterprise with Cochran complete. It may be that $8 per ton is the true rule of damages. That, however, depends upon the fact whether the libelants could have realized that sum from this cargo, over and above freight and charges, had Capt. Arnold done his whole duty by delivering it at Antwerp. In other words, the damages for which the ship is liable are those, and those only, which the libelants suffered from the failure of Capt. Arnold to deliver the cargo at Antwerp, either to some proper and responsible house, who would receive it on the same terms under which it was consigned to Marsily, or in store, subject to libelants' order. It may be that these damages amount to $8 per ton. They cannot amount to more, unless the contract between the libelants and Cochran is to be deemed as having been rescinded, with notice to Arnold before the time when the delivery at Antwerp should have taken place, of which I see no evidence. They may amount to much less, or to nothing at all. What the fact is, of course, the Court cannot know, until the matter is determined upon a proper reference.

It follows from these views that the ship must be held liable for the value of this cargo at Antwerp, after deducting freight and all proper charges, at least up to $8 per ton; provided the value should so far exceed such freight and charges.

3. This brings us naturally to the only remaining question, viz: What are the charges proper to be deducted from the value of this cargo at Antwerp, before we begin to estimate the damages to the libelants? And the only difference between the parties here is that which relates to the single item of demurrage. This item is a large one, amounting to $4,700.

In determining this point in the case I do not deem it necessary to go into the general law of demurrage; as I think the duties and obligations of both the libelants and the respondents must be determined by the contract between the libelants and Cochran and the representations made by the former to Capt. Arnold, and for this purpose I hold, Capt. Arnold, must be charged with a knowledge of the contract. Now the contract says the cargo was to be delivered as fast as the agent of the libelants could receive it. From this it would appear that they did not intend to bind themselves to a particular number of lay-days within which the cargo should be delivered to the ship, but only bound themselves to the all dispatch with the force they might have at the island when the Robert Center should arrive. In addition to this, both Mr. Fowler and Mr. Fabens, on behalf of the libelants, assured Capt. Arnold, at their interview with him, that they would render every exertion in their power to load the ship, although they would give no guaranty as to time. They further stated to him that they were about to dispatch the Golden Lead to the island with more laborers and boats, to facilitate these operations of loading. Now, taking this clause of the contract and these representations, and no one could imagine from either or all of them taken together, that this vessel, the Golden Lead, was to be sent out there to be loaded in advance of the Robert Center, keeping the latter waiting thirty days before she could commence loading at all. The fair import of these representations was that the sending out of the Golden Lead would facilitate the operation of loading the Robert Center, and I think Capt. ARNOLD had a right to rely on that result. But what was the fact? The Golden Lead was required by the libelants to be loaded first, and the Robert Center was not allowed to commence loading at all. This was not facilitating the loading of the latter vessel, but actually preventing it. The charter-party was in no sense the cause of the delay which occurred in loading the vessel, the cause was in the charter contract, to deliver the cargo in the charter vessels of Cochran as fast as the Company could receive it. According to the claim of the libelants, they urge the loading of the Center vessels in order that their vessel, the Golden Lead, might be dispatched with her cargo. The only risk he was to take in regard to the time of loading was the possible absence of the libelants' men from the island when his vessels should arrive, and the necessary and inevitable delay that might take place while the libelants were doing their best to load the ships. To say that the libelants, upon the heel of the execution of this contract, could send out ships of their own to be loaded in advance of those chartered by Cochran, and thus ruinously postpone the loading of his, would be untenable, and ill-comport with the just and equitable principle of the maritime law. No ship could have been chartered by Cochran to engage in such an undertaking subject to such a power in the Company.

Cochran, in his deposition, says something about the loading of the Golden Lead first, if she should arrive first, being spoken of. But I attach as little importance to his statements as the counsel for the libelants does. I think the terms of the contract, and the sworn statements of Mr. Fabens and Mr. Fowler, usually exhibited, are the best evidence on this point. But, assuming the version of Cochran the true one, I still think the Robert Center should have been loaded first. It is true, Capt. Johnson, of the Golden Lead, says that he arrived a few hours the first, but he also says they came to the landing together, and that the Robert Center delivered her order and was ready to take in cargo at once, while the Golden Lead was not ready until some days to commence taking in her cargo.

I am, therefore, of opinion that the libelants are liable to the ship for demurrage, at the rate specified in the charter party, for every day from the time of her arrival up to the time she commenced loading, and no more. Even if Capt. Arnold did not know of the stipulation in Cochran's contract, that the cargo was to be delivered only so fast as it could be done by the libelants, he was told that they would guarantee nothing in the way of dispatch, but would deliver it as fast as they could. There is no evidence of any remissness on their part after the Golden Lead was loaded, and therefore they cannot be held liable for the delay, which they informed Capt. Arnold they would not be liable for, before he concluded his charter-party.

Something is said in the answer about the failure of the libelants to perform that part of the contract with Cochran by which they stipulate to deliver the guano "along side and within reach of the vessel." If there was any material delay and expense, or either occasioned by any failure of the libelants in this particular, let it be made into an issue for reference, and reported to the Court by the same Commissioner who may inquire into the value of this cargo at Antwerp at the time when it should have been delivered by Capt. Arnold at that place.

Let an order of reference be made to a Commissioner in conformity with this opinion.

Question of Practice—Opening a Default.

SUPERIOR COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Justice Monell.

Charles Bachelor vs. Henry V. Bush et al.—The plaintiff sued the defendants for the infringement of a trademark, and after trial, a reference was taken to assess the damages. The Referee reported in favor of the plaintiff, and defendants filed exceptions to the Referee's report. A motion was then made for judgment, and confirmation of the report which was granted by default of defendant's attorney. An application is now made to open the default, on the ground, first, that defendants' counsel had mistaken the time, and, second, that no confirmation of the report could be had until defendants' exceptions were heard. The Court thought the grounds well taken, and granted the motion to open the default, on condition that the exceptions be argued on Wednesday next.

Samuel Owen for plaintiff; H. D. Lapaugh for defendant.

SATURDAY, Aug. 22—P. M.

The price of Gold which closed at 115@115½, yesterday, sold to-day at 115¼@115¾ ⅌ cent. The closing quotation is 115¼@115½ ⅌ cent. There was little or nothing done in Exchange after the steamer mails closed. The rate on London is 127½@127¾ ⅌ cent.

On the opening of the Stock Exchange Board this morning, adverse military rumors were revived, which, with some considerable sales by one of the Bull Brokers, caused a decline of 1⅛ ⅌ cent. on the Railway Shares. Soon after the Board adjourned, these rumors were contradicted by positive dispatches of a different nature, and the market recovered the decline, and in some instances advanced above the last prices of yesterday. There was no regular session of the Board in the afternoon, but at an informal meeting of the Brokers in the Board room at 2½ o'clock, P. M., prices were weak again, and adverse rumors or surmises of bad news were renewed. The latest quotations on the Street were about as follows:

New-York Central	82¼	Illinois Central	82½
Erie	42½	Pacific	116
Erie Preferred	62	Hudson	50½
Lake Shore	67½	United States 6s, 1881	98
Toledo	82	U. S. Notes, C. Bonds	107½
Michigan Central	71½	Gold	115½
Michigan Southern	50½	Sterling	127½
Michigan Guaranteed	69½	Missouris	47½

The shipments of Gold by the steamers, to-day, amount to $329,625; a larger sum than was generally anticipated, causing, in the absence of the California, a stiffer quotation at the close of the day.

TROUBLE AMONG THE SOLDIERS.

SYMPTOMS OF MUTINY.

Revolt of the Regiments Raised in New-York, Stationed by the Non-Payment of the State Bounty.

A Number of the Officers and Men Seriously Injured.

The Union Barracks Nearly Demolished—The Howard House Gutted.

United States Marines Ordered Out to Quell the Disturbance.

ONE MAN SUPPOSED TO BE KILLED.

Serious riot occurred among the soldiers of the Regiments stationed at East New-York, Saturday afternoon, which resulted in the partial demolition of the Union Barracks and the complete gutting of the Howard House, opposite. A number of the officers and soldiers were seriously injured, and it was reported that several were killed, but in the great confusion that prevailed it was impossible to determine the exact state of affairs.

Among the injured is Capt. J. R. Dunn.

It appears that there has been much dissatisfaction recently in regard to the bounties, some of the men who had enlisted weeks ago not having received the first cent of the bounty offered by the State.

Hence, who recently enlisted, came to the quarters with the bounty given by the county, and the fact leaking out to the others, had a bad feeling was engendered in consequence.

Shortly after 4 o'clock P. M., out of the Regiment, one of the revolt, a private of Company A, armed and equipped, which well marked with liquor, mounted a barrel, and commenced to harangue the men. Capt. Kenny ordered him to his quarters. He refused to go, and the officer, when the whole company came to the out of the station. Several officers present attempted to remove quiet, when they were set upon and badly beaten. The officers were taken from the ground, and used up the mutineers by battering the officers and all who opposed him.

The officers being overpowered made their escape, and the whole brigade, numbering perhaps 2,000 men, rushed out of the gate and commenced battering in the windows of the barracks, which construction was pretty well finished. They then built fires opposite to the Howard House opposite, and then commenced the purpose, smashing in windows, and doing whatever damage they could, helping themselves to all the liquor they could find. The whisky, brandy and gin bottles, kegs of lager beer, and whatever else was found handy, were taken out in the street and into the barracks, the doors having been demolished, and there were riot and confusion all around. The few officers were powerless, and the soldiers had everything their own way.

There at least men were badly injured, but it does not appear that anyone was killed, although it was reported that six or eight persons had been shot and bayoneted. Only the guard (about 20 men) had muskets. The bayonets has not yet been provided with them.

Gen. Slocum was attending the meeting at the City Hall when he was informed of the trouble. Himself and Col. Jennison immediately started to East New-York, but by the time they arrived the men had scattered in every direction. Scarcely two hundred remained. The majority had left by the Division-ground and Fulton-street cars, which were crowded, all endeavoring to reach their homes in this city and New-York.

Those who proved doubtful were gathered together by the officers who turned on the guard, and, together with those who could be picked up along the road, were brought to the city.

The Brigade Headquarters in Station-house, opposite the City Hall, was crowded about 9 o'clock, and as the Station-house could not accommodate so large a number, arrangements were made to confine them in the City Hall during the night.

As soon as it became known at headquarters that the revolt had broken out, Gen. SYMONS requested Admiral Paulding to send out a company of marines from the Navy-Yard. A guard of one hundred men, with loaded muskets, was immediately organized in the house of pension. The Metropolitan Police, under Inspector Bonham, also went out, and did their duty manfully. The distance from the City Hall to East New-York is four miles.

The excitement was intense throughout the city, and hundreds of persons, believing that there had been great slaughter, went out to the barracks to satisfy themselves.

The cause of all the trouble was the free use of liquor, and after some of the most turbulent characters had imbibed sufficient to make them quarrelsome, they made the non-payment of the State bounty the pretext of causing a riot.

There has been much dissatisfaction in regard to the matter. Those who have been in camp for weeks have continually inquired of the new recruits who had received the County as well as the private bounties. Some, in fact, had more money than they ever had before and did not know how to restrain themselves. This appears to have been the real cause of the trouble, and the result is that one of the whole number in the camp not two hundred could be collected together. The men are scattered all over the city, and many have gone home or to New-York and elsewhere. It will keep the officers busy some days before they can collect them.

The number of enlisted men in the brigade is about 2,000, of which about 1,200 were in camp.

It was ascertained at a late hour last night that when the police arrived on the ground, they were attacked with clubs, stones and bottles. A militia company, from the village, came to the aid of the police, and completely drove the soldiers into the barracks. Inspector Folk was considerably injured with a stone, which hit him on the head, and Officer Dawes was struck in the face with a bottle. As the men were being pushed back, some one fired a shot, which took effect in the leg of Major Mead of the Forty-fifth Regiment, and it is feared he is killed. Several of them most seriously injured were conveyed to the Hospital.

At future accounts all was quiet.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

The Quota Required From Brooklyn.

MEETING OF THE WARD COMMITTEES TO ASCERTAIN WHAT IS REQUIRED.

Yesterday afternoon, at four o'clock, a meeting of one delegate from each city, ward and county town was held in the Governor's Room of the Brooklyn City Hall, for the purpose of ascertaining what was required of Kings County in regard to the furnishing of volunteers under the late bill.

There appears to be a good deal of misunderstanding about the quota to which the quota is to be subject, whether it shall be what is for the whole county, and this evidence the county is to be credited for the men enlisted before the 4d of July and subsequently. The meeting was organized by the selection of Gen. J. S. T. Stranahan as Chairman, and R. Dawes, Esq., as Secretary.

Gen. J. S. T. Stranahan stated that he had an interview with Gov. MORGAN, and that from what he understood the quota was to be raised by the county as a whole, and not by Wards.

Gen. F. E. SPINOLA read the orders of the Governor dated Aug. 12, and mentioned that the number of men required was to be raised by Wards and towns, and that each Ward and town was to be credited with the number of men raised.

Considerable discussion ensued. Some of the representatives stated that their Wards had furnished a large number of men, but could raise very little money to enlist more, and suggested therefore that the call should be made upon the county at large, and not upon the different Wards. The Sixteenth Ward was instanced as having furnished about 2,000 soldiers since the commencement of the war, but would not now raise sufficient money to pay the bounties some of the Wards offered as bounties. Some Wards could furnish all the money required but very few men, while the poor Wards could furnish men but could raise very little money.

Mr. EDWIN DAWES proposed that each Ward be recommended to offer a bounty of $25 to every recruit, when Mr. RAY W. PERSON, of the Eleventh Ward, offered the following resolutions:

THE BUFFALO IRISH REGIMENT.

Gov. MORGAN has appointed JOHN E. MCMAHON, formerly private secretary of Gov. SEWARD, Colonel of the Irish Regiment now being raised in Buffalo.

This regiment, though commenced but a few days since, now numbers some four hundred men, and is expected to reach its maximum in ten days.

Col. McMAHON is a brother of Capt. M. T. McMahon, of Gen. McClellan's staff; also of Capt. J. P. McMahon, formerly of the Sixty-ninth Irish Brigade, and who, it will be remembered, distinguished himself in battle at the battle of Fair Oaks in leading the Sixty-eighth, now in Gen. Meagher's brigade.

The three are the sons of Patrick McMahon, Esq., of Cattaraugus County, for a long time Postmaster in Allegany, and well known as a leading and influential politician in the western part of the State.

It is but justice to state that the venerable and worthy Bishop Timon has cordially aided and encouraged the formation of this regiment.

MORE TROOPS FROM MASSACHUSETTS.

BOSTON, Saturday, Aug. 23.

Lowell has more than filled her full quota of troops for the war.

The old Sixth Massachusetts Regiment, which left the ten days ago in Baltimore, will go home coming next Monday. This regiment is under orders to leave for Washington on September 1st.

PATRIOTISM IN BUFFALO.

BUFFALO, Saturday, Aug. 23.

Yesterday the day guards merchants inaugurated the early closing movement. Their stores will hereafter be closed daily at 3 P. M., and this will continue until the 4th of September.

By next week the closing of stores will be universal, in order that all may aid in the work of enlistment.

War meetings will be held daily, commencing at 4 P. M.

The war spirit in this city is fully aroused, and there is a determination that Buffalo shall not be behind any of her sister cities in sending volunteers to the war.

ENLISTING IN MAINE.

PORTLAND, Friday, Aug. 22.

Business throughout the city was suspended this afternoon to permit the citizens to attend the meeting. The City Hall was crowded to suffocation, and great enthusiasm prevailed. It is expected that Portland will raise her quota of nine months men by volunteers.

MILITARY MATTERS IN THE CITY.

PROGRESS OF ENLISTMENTS.

Notwithstanding the published announcement that the United States bounties of $25 and $2 should not be paid to recruits for the new regiments after Friday, there was, yesterday, no falling off in the number of volunteers who preferred joining these organizations rather than regiments now in the field. Nearly all the recruiting stations in the City were busier than usual. It would be hard to say why a large proportion of these volunteers of yesterday deliberately procrastinated in the way they did, when the twenty-four hours' difference of time made a difference so trifling in the bounty. Recruiting for regiments in the field appears to grow steadily brisker. For another week, men who enlist in them still receive the full amount of $62.

UNITED STATES MUSTERING OFFICE.

About the average number of recruits for old regiments were inspected and passed at the United States Mustering Office in White-street yesterday. Capt. LARNED says the number of candidates for enrollment thereafter rather than diminishes as the time for putting the draft into execution approaches. There is scarcely a large class who make up their minds that voluntary enlistment and $62 bounty is better than conscription and nothing.

QUARTERMASTERS' OFFICES.

There is an ever-accumulating mass of work at both the State and United States Quartermasters' offices. At the latter there is considerable red tape mingled with the execution of the office duties. At the former a new and excellent system has been adopted. Both get through an immense amount of business, and supply regiments with equipments; but, in quiet attention to all calls upon them, and promptitude in filling requisitions, Gen. ARMY and his aids are ahead of the United States people.

PAYMENT OF BOUNTIES.

The United States bounties of $25 are, as before stated, due to be one who volunteered for any new regiment since Friday. They will, though, continue to be paid to volunteers for regiments in the field until to-morrow week—the 1st of September. Capt. CARR disburses these bounties at his office in Whitehall, paying every man within a few minutes of his passing the doctor and Capt. LARNED. Payment of the State bounty of $50 is extended to the 1st of September, recruits for old and new regiments alike coming in for the benefit of it. Col. BURR is disbursing officer for the State.

THE ENLISTMENT—OATH QUESTION.

On the opening of the Supreme Court, before Judge BARNARD, each morning, a number of applications on behalf of new recruits, on habeas corpus, to be discharged from the service, are heard, and, as a general thing, are denied by the Court. The principal ground on which these applications are made is that the recruit, at the date of his enlistment, was under eighteen years of age, and that he enlisted without the consent of his parent or guardian.

There has been some variance in the decisions of the different Courts on the question whether under the act of Congress the oath of the person enlisting, that he was over the age of eighteen, is not conclusive, and stops him from proving the falsity of his own oath on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

This variance has arisen from the fact that the late act of Congress declaring such oath conclusive could not be found, but Justice BARNARD, on application to the Department at Washington, has received a certified copy of the act, which now settles the question. The provision occurs in the second section of an act making an appropriation for the defence of Washington, and other purposes, and approved Feb. 13, 1862. The section reads as follows:

"That the 9th section of the act of the 28th September, 1850, providing for the discharge from the service of minors enlisted without the consent of their parents or guardians, be, and the same is hereby repealed; provided, that hereafter no person under the age of eighteen shall be mustered into the United States service, and the oath of enlistment taken by the recruit shall be conclusive."

PATRIOTISM IN THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Mr. GEO. W. COCKER, finance clerk of the Board of Education, with a salary of $2,000 a year, has resigned his position to take the Captaincy of Company B, One Hundred and Twenty-seventh Regiment, (the "Mozart," N. Y. V. His brother, CORNELIUS COCKER, principal of Ward School No. 6, has also resigned his office in order to accept a similar position in the same regiment. Both of the above-named gentlemen served three months as privates in the Seventy-first Regiment, at the commencement of the war, and were in the battle of Bull Run.

THE REGIMENT FOR DRAFTING.

Judge Advocate-General ADAMS was engaged again the greater part of yesterday in appointing enrolling officers for this City and Brooklyn. Several of those previously appointed declined their appointments. The whole of this preliminary office business will be completed by to-morrow. The Judge Advocate has issued the subjoined supplementary order:

HEADQUARTERS ENROLLING OFFICER,
JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT,
NEW-YORK, Aug. 23, 1862.

GENERAL ORDERS, No. 3.—The following addition and correction to General Orders, Nos. 1 and 2, are hereby promulgated for the instruction of the Enrolling Officers:

1. The Enrolling Officers will report once a day only, namely, at 3 o'clock P. M.

2. The Enrolling Officers will record the conscription of the persons enrolled in addition to their names and residences.

By order of
WM. HENRY ANTHON,
SIXTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT COMMITTEE.

The Committee on Enlistments of the Sixth Senatorial District, met at the City Hall yesterday afternoon, Mr. Frank COCKER in the chair. Mayor OPDYKE stated that he had not been able to see a majority of the Chamber of Commerce Committee relative to the transfer of subscription of $1,000, (concerning which he had spoken at the meeting of the Sixth Senatorial Committee on Thursday,) he would, however, hand the treasurer a check for $500 at once, and see almost the balance by the next meeting. THE BUFFALO IRISH REGIMENT.

Gov. MORGAN has appointed JOHN E. MCMAHON, formerly private secretary of Gov. SEWARD, Colonel of the Irish Regiment now being raised in Buffalo.

This regiment, though commenced but a few days since, now numbers some four hundred men, and is expected to reach its maximum in ten days.

Col. McMAHON is a brother of Capt. M. T. McMahon, of Gen. McClellan's staff; also of Capt. J. P. McMahon, formerly of the Sixty-ninth Irish Brigade, and who, it will be remembered, distinguished himself in battle at the battle of Fair Oaks in leading the Sixty-eighth, now in Gen. Meagher's brigade.

The three are the sons of Patrick McMahon, Esq., of Cattaraugus County, for a long time Postmaster in Allegany, and well known as a leading and influential politician in the western part of the State.

It is but justice to state that the venerable and worthy Bishop Timon has cordially aided and encouraged the formation of this regiment.

MORE TROOPS FROM MASSACHUSETTS.

BOSTON, Saturday, Aug. 23.

Lowell has more than filled her full quota of troops for the war.

The old Sixth Massachusetts Regiment, which left the ten days ago in Baltimore, will go home coming next Monday. This regiment is under orders to leave for Washington on September 1st.

PATRIOTISM IN BUFFALO.

BUFFALO, Saturday, Aug. 23.

Yesterday the day guards merchants inaugurated the early closing movement. Their stores will hereafter be closed daily at 3 P. M., and this will continue until the 4th of September.

By next week the closing of stores will be universal, in order that all may aid in the work of enlistment.

War meetings will be held daily, commencing at 4 P. M.

The war spirit in this city is fully aroused, and there is a determination that Buffalo shall not be behind any of her sister cities in sending volunteers to the war.

ENLISTING IN MAINE.

PORTLAND, Friday, Aug. 22.

Business throughout the city was suspended this afternoon to permit the citizens to attend the meeting. The City Hall was crowded to suffocation, and great enthusiasm prevailed. It is expected that Portland will raise her quota of nine months men by volunteers.

MILITARY MATTERS IN THE CITY.

PROGRESS OF ENLISTMENTS.

Notwithstanding the published announcement that the United States bounties of $25 and $2 should not be paid to recruits for the new regiments after Friday, there was, yesterday, no falling off in the number of volunteers who preferred joining these organizations rather than regiments now in the field. Nearly all the recruiting stations in the City were busier than usual. It would be hard to say why a large proportion of these volunteers of yesterday deliberately procrastinated in the way they did, when the twenty-four hours' difference of time made a difference so trifling in the bounty. Recruiting for regiments in the field appears to grow steadily brisker. For another week, men who enlist in them still receive the full amount of $62.

UNITED STATES MUSTERING OFFICE.

About the average number of recruits for old regiments were inspected and passed at the United States Mustering Office in White-street yesterday. Capt. LARNED says the number of candidates for enrollment thereafter rather than diminishes as the time for putting the draft into execution approaches. There is scarcely a large class who make up their minds that voluntary enlistment and $62 bounty is better than conscription and nothing.

QUARTERMASTERS' OFFICES.

There is an ever-accumulating mass of work at both the State and United States Quartermasters' offices. At the latter there is considerable red tape mingled with the execution of the office duties. At the former a new and excellent system has been adopted. Both get through an immense amount of business, and supply regiments with equipments; but, in quiet attention to all calls upon them, and promptitude in filling requisitions, Gen. ARMY and his aids are ahead of the United States people.

PAYMENT OF BOUNTIES.

The United States bounties of $25 are, as before stated, due to be one who volunteered for any new regiment since Friday. They will, though, continue to be paid to volunteers for regiments in the field until to-morrow week—the 1st of September. Capt. CARR disburses these bounties at his office in Whitehall, paying every man within a few minutes of his passing the doctor and Capt. LARNED. Payment of the State bounty of $50 is extended to the 1st of September, recruits for old and new regiments alike coming in for the benefit of it. Col. BURR is disbursing officer for the State.

THE ENLISTMENT—OATH QUESTION.

On the opening of the Supreme Court, before Judge BARNARD, each morning, a number of applications on behalf of new recruits, on habeas corpus, to be discharged from the service, are heard, and, as a general thing, are denied by the Court. The principal ground on which these applications are made is that the recruit, at the date of his enlistment, was under eighteen years of age, and that he enlisted without the consent of his parent or guardian.

There has been some variance in the decisions of the different Courts on the question whether under the act of Congress the oath of the person enlisting, that he was over the age of eighteen, is not conclusive, and stops him from proving the falsity of his own oath on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

This variance has arisen from the fact that the late act of Congress declaring such oath conclusive could not be found, but Justice BARNARD, on application to the Department at Washington, has received a certified copy of the act, which now settles the question. The provision occurs in the second section of an act making an appropriation for the defence of Washington, and other purposes, and approved Feb. 13, 1862. The section reads as follows:

"That the 9th section of the act of the 28th September, 1850, providing for the discharge from the service of minors enlisted without the consent of their parents or guardians, be, and the same is hereby repealed; provided, that hereafter no person under the age of eighteen shall be mustered into the United States service, and the oath of enlistment taken by the recruit shall be conclusive."

THE GUERRILLAS IN MISSOURI.

Close Pursuit of Coffee, Hays and Quantrell—Their Home Guard Attacked, &c.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Friday, Aug. 22.

Gen. WEIRICH, of the National forces, passed Carthage yesterday in hot pursuit of the guerrillas, under COFFEE, HAYS and QUANTRELL. On Wednesday he attacked the rebels near Grand, killed 12, and captured 71. Quite a number of guns, horses and other property had fallen into his hands.

The Kansas troops, under Gen. STEELE, were only a few miles behind, pushing on rapidly. A number of horses and a quantity of camp equipage were found at the Osage, where the rebels crossed.

All the bad characters in Western Missouri are joining COFFEE, which will drive that district of a dangerous element.

The pursuit will not be relaxed until the rebels are driven from the State.

Gottschalk's Concert at Saratoga Springs in Aid of the Sick and Wounded Soldiers.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

It is due to the eminent and patriotic pianist, GOTTSCHALK, to state, that during the present Summer, he has been rendering excellent service to the brave defenders of our country now suffering from disease by thousands in our hospitals. On Thursday evening last, a week, he gave a grand concert at Saratoga Springs, the proceeds of which were exclusively applied to the replenishing of the exchequer of the "Ladies' Aid Society," organized by the lady visitors at the Springs during the present season, and which met daily in the south parlor of Congress Hall, to make up garments for the soldiers. The concert was given in the large dining room of Union Hall, and was the most brilliant occasion of the kind ever witnessed, even at this centre of refinement and fashion. A few days subsequent, Mr. GOTTSCHALK handed over to the ladies as the result of his labor of love, the handsome sum of [illegible] DOLLARS, in round numbers, together with his best wishes for the further usefulness and success of the Society.

Both as an act of justice to the benevolent donor, and to let the public know the disposition made of the funds, the ladies kindly request the insertion of the subjoined proceedings in the Times, which will enable you to do their warmest gratitude:

MEETING OF THE LADIES' AID SOCIETY OF SARATOGA SPRINGS.

At a meeting of the above Society, held at Congress Hall, Saratoga, Aug. 20, 1862, it was unanimously

Resolved, That our heartfelt acknowledgments are hereby tendered to Mr. GOTTSCHALK, for the liberal contribution of eight hundred dollars to the funds of our Society, the proceeds of a concert given by him in our behalf, at Union Hall.

Resolved, That in honor of the patriotic and disinterested donor, the same be called "The Gottschalk Relief Fund."

Resolved, That the unexpended balance of our fund, and of all other funds and contributions in our hands, after the close of the watering season, be placed in the hands of Mrs. Mayor OPDYKE, of the City of New-York, under whose direction the society shall continue its labors.

Mrs. Rev. E. W. HUTTER, President.
Mrs. E. Mearman, Vice-President.
Mrs. Prof. MILLS, Treasurer.
Mr. J. B. OAKS, Secretary.

A Petition Lost.

Col. W. A. BARTLEY has left in the office of some friend, or in a car or stage, a petition to the Hon. WILLIAM H. SEWARD, signed by over 100 of our best citizens, asking his restoration to his naval rank, of which he was deprived by the Naval Board of 1858. Will the party into whose hands it has fallen, please hand it into the office of BARTLEY & BARTLEY, Engineers, No. 100 Broadway, Room 8.
